Japan Demands Military Bases In Indo-China

France Also Asked To Give Tokyo Increased Exports to Colony.

By The United Press.
VICHY, Aug. 4.—Japan has demanded the right to establish naval and military bases in French Indo-China and diplomatic negotiations on the question are proceeding in Tokyo between Ambassador Charles Arsene-Henry and the Japanese foreign office, French informants said tonight.

The Japanese also demand a new trade agreement providing for greatly increased Japanese exports to Indo-China which would be paid for by Japanese imports of iron, coal, tin and other Indo-Chinese raw materials, according to the informants.

Necessary for Victory.
The demand for military bases, the informants said, was explained as necessary to enable the Japanese to obtain an early victory over Chinese Nationalist armies headed by Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek.

A Japanese military mission recently has been in Indo-China enforcing a French-Japanese agreement for a cessation of the movement of war materials through the French colony to Nationalist Chinese armies. United Press dispatches from Hanoi a week ago said the mission was reported to be planning to ask the French for the right to transport troops through Indo-China to attack Chiang's bases in Yunnan province.

JAPANESE TO DISCUSS
EAST INDIES' FUTURE
BERLIN, Aug. 4.—(P) (via Radio).—The German radio reported from Tokyo today that Japanese Premier Prince Konohe and General Kuniaki Koiso, former overseas minister, will confer tomorrow on Japan's future relations with the Dutch East Indies.

On the outcome of their talk, the report said, would depend whether General Koiso is to be appointed minister extraordinary and head of an economic mission to the rich Dutch possessions in the Pacific.

"Koiso will accept this post only if his program for the Dutch East Indies as a part of Japanese South Seas policy is unconditionally accepted," it added.

Spain Pictured By Priest as Famine-Ridden

Country Said Overrun by Nazi 'Fifth Column- ist' Tourists.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—(P)—Spain was pictured today by passengers on the Spanish liner Marques de Comillas arriving from Bilbao and Havana as a famine-ridden country, overrun by German "Fifth Columnists" in the guise of tourists.

The Rev. Timothy L. Bouscaren, of Chicago, who had been teaching canon law for two years at the Gregorian University in Rome, declared both Spain and Italy had been reduced to conditions where "they can't fight."

"The Italian people did not want war and they can't take it now," he said. "There are food shortages and the people are restless."

"But the conditions in Spain are appalling. There is poverty everywhere, and the people are terribly hungry. They're completely miserable."

Other passengers said Spain was thronged with young male tourists from Germany—enough, added one passenger, Raymond Rademaker, to make up four divisions and seize the country.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Aug. 4. (UP)—Reports from Gothenburg tonight said that fishermen returning to the Swedish port had heard gunfire in the North sea and believed that a naval battle was taking place.

Tomorrow May Be Too Late, General Warns

Declares Aid to British Would 'Keep War on Other Side.'

By The Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—General John J. Pershing urged tonight that the United States send a minimum of 50 destroyers to aid Great Britain, asserting that "we shall be failing in our duty to America if we do not do it."

The World War commander of the American Expeditionary Forces, now in his eightieth year, said in a broadcast address that "by sending help to the British, we can still hope with confidence to keep the war on the other side of the Atlantic ocean where the enemies of liberty, if possible, should be defeated."

Before It's Too Late.
Urging immediate action, he declared:

"I say to you solemnly that tomorrow may be forever too late to keep war from the Americas. Today may be the last time when any measures short of war we can still prevent war."

He again indorsed compulsory military training.

He said that it was not "hystrical" to say that democracy and liberty were threatened.

"A new kind of war," he declared, "is loose in the world—fought with all weapons, including treason, and fought most insidiously during what some of our countrymen call 'peacetime.' It is a war against the civilization that we know."

"Dignity of Man Denied."
"It is a revolution against all the values which we have cherished and which we wish our children to cherish in the future. It is a revolution which denies the dignity of man and which banishes the hope of brotherhood and comradeship on earth. We can see it developing right before our very eyes."

"It must be faced with daring and with devotion. We must lift up our hearts. We must reaffirm our noble tradition. We must make ourselves so strong that the tradition we live by shall not perish from the earth."

When he had completed his address, Pershing walked from his room down a corridor. He was met by Secretary of State and Mrs. Hull who also are residents of the hotel from which Pershing spoke.

Hull grasped Pershing's hand and warmly congratulated him.

Cooperate With Nazis If They Win-Lindbergh

'Interests Will Do Utmost To Draw Us Into War,' He Charges.

CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—(P)—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh said today that in the future the United States "may have to deal with a Europe dominated by Germany" and advocated "co-operation" with Europe in our relationships with the other peoples of the earth.

He told a mass meeting in Soldier Field, sponsored by the "Citizens Keep America Out of War Committee," that:

"There are still interests in this country and abroad who will do their utmost to draw us into the war. Against these interests we must be continuously on guard. But American opinion is now definitely and overwhelmingly against our involvement."

The other principal speaker at the rally was Senator Patrick A. McCarran, Democrat, Nevada, who was introduced by James Van

Bobby Jones Promises To Aid In Campaign To Elect Willkie

Golfer Who Helped Raise Funds for Roosevelt's First Race, Now Believes Republican Nomi- nee 'Best Man for the Job.'

Robert Tyre Jones Jr., Atlanta's grand slam champion of golf, will support Wendell L. Willkie in his campaign for the presidency, because he thinks "he's the best man for the job."

At Highlands, N. C., where he is vacationing, the famous king of golf disclosed yesterday that he has telegraphed his support to Willkie.

"I want to help him in any way I can," Jones declared in a telephone interview with The Constitution. "My support, however, is that of a private citizen."

No Campaign Plan.

Jones said he has "no definite plans" for an active campaign in behalf of the former president of the Commonwealth & Southern Corporation.

Previously, the retired golfer has taken little part in political campaigns. He has never before openly supported any candidate, with the exception of, President Roosevelt.

During the President's first campaign, Jones worked with L. W. Robert Jr., now secretary of the Democratic National Committee, in raising funds for Mr. Roosevelt.

He is now a partner with his father in a large Atlanta legal firm.

The complete text of Jones' telegram follows:

"It seems to me that the state of this nation today and problems it is obviously facing make it the duty of every citizen to make his voice heard in deciding important political issues, whether or not he has any political background or claims any political voice."

"Also I think the result of the coming presidential election is of such vital importance, it transcends any line of geography or party."

"Therefore, I want to say to you that I intend to vote for you and to aid your candidacy in every way possible, because I feel very strongly you will supply the leadership which will unite the people

Six of Georgia Congressmen For Training

Service Favored by Rus- sel, George, Vinson, Cox, Camp, Tarver.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—(P)—Six members of Georgia's congressional delegation were committed today to the principle of compulsory military training.

Although some disliked the term "conscription," these six said, they would support "reasonable" legislation providing selective training. The others said they were not yet ready to express their views.

The Georgians who declared their stand, representing half the state's delegation, were Senators George and Russell and Representatives Vinson, Cox, Camp and Tarver.

In a 400-word statement, Tarver said he believed a sufficient voluntary force to man the equipment and facilities provided by congress would not be available.

He also advocated taking "by appropriate legal means" enough of the nation's wealth to defray the expenses of the emergency.

Senators George and Russell said they believed the existing situation required some form of selective service, but they declined to commit themselves to any particular bill.

Representative Vinson declared he was "for it," and Representative Cox asserted the senate committee bill was too weak with 21 to 31 age limitation. In its original form, the Burke-Wadsworth bill would have required the registration of all men between the ages of 18 and 60.

Representative Camp has told friends frequently he favored selective training, although like the senators, he has not indorsed any particular bill.

Representative Ramspeck said he was willing to rely on the opinions of "persons in authority," unless some reason was shown to the contrary, but he reserved the right to vote either way on conscription legislation after hearing the evidence.

Fascists Interned in England 'Throw' Champagne Parties; Mosley Followers in Jail Greet Each Other With Salutes

LONDON, Aug. 4.—(UP)—Stories of high life among interned Fascist prisoners in Brixton and Holloway prisons, including champagne parties staged by followers of Sir Oswald Mosley, are expected to lead to embarrassing questions in parliament this week.

Disclosure of special liberties being afforded to hundreds of the interned Fascists while other prisoners without funds are compelled to be content with ordinary prison fare was widely commented upon in the press today.

The followers of Mosley, head of the outlawed British Union of Fascists and himself a prisoner for the duration of the war, were said to hold frequent bridge and champagne parties and to greet each other in prison with the Fascist salute.

Newspaper accounts said the Fascist prisoners were permitted to ease their prison hardships with free expenditures from their private incomes.

Mosley, according to the Sunday pictorial, spends four pounds weekly ($20) in Brixton prison ordering specially prepared meals and daily bottles of wine and even has a "batman" or personal valet.

Mosley was described as taking great pride in his personal appearance, selecting a different, smartly-cut lounge suite each week for prison wear. His silk shirts and underclothing are laundered in exclusive Mayfair.

The 300 other Fascists interned in Brixton prison were said to regard Mosley as their "leader," and he holds himself somewhat aloof from all the other prisoners.

Warders were reported to have complained that when lesser Fascists among the prisoners are given instructions they answer:

"We take orders only from our leader."

Asserting that the interned Fascists are permitted to hold meetings without surveillance, Reynolds News said that at their gatherings "plans for a British Fascist state are drawn up."

Lady Mosley and the other Fascist women interned in Holloway prison frequently are visited by wealthy Mayfair friends who arrive in sleek limousines bearing

R.A.F. Attacks Armored Train; Oil Bases Afire

Britain Takes Offensive as Tide and Fog Aid Hitler's Plans.

STOCKHOLM, Aug. 4.—(UP)—The German high command now plans to launch its mass invasion of Britain in the general period around August 8 to 10, according to private Norwegian advices received here tonight.

LONDON, Monday, Aug. 5.—(UP)—Newspapers today warned the public that the German effort to invade Britain in force may come within a week.

By The Associated Press.
Britain plunged her air force into the offensive last night as hard-hitting raiders brought back word of Nazi troop and equipment concentrations just across the English channel.

On the eve of the August high tides, which from today through Friday will afford the Germans their best chance of sea-borne attack, British pilots told of machinegunning troops at Abbeville and bombing lorry convoys, an armored train and barges near Gravelines and Dunkerque.

Nazi Defense Weaker.
An air ministry communique, terming German defense weaker and less accurate, told of attacks from Saturday through last night ranging from the Nazi-held coast to industrial centers deep into Germany.

The announcement said naval buildings at Kiel were set afire, airdromes were pounded heavily, and synthetic oil plants with which Adolf Hitler helps feed his war machine were hit directly.

Authoritative sources said the emphasis would be kept on offensive in the air, taking advantage of the steadily lengthening hours of darkness for harder blows than ever at Germany.

This week, the almanac forecasts high tides will be accompanied by calm seas and channel fog—a nature-made water highway and "smoke screen" for which Hitler may have been waiting.

Day and Night Raids.

To jam the Nazi war machinery, British fliers have been making raids day and night, the air ministry reported, declaring that some of the most important sources of German synthetic oil were attacked.

Hits reported on important Nazi objectives included:

A large freight yard at Cologne, air bases at Schiphol and Heemstede, military stores and a truck convoy at Abbeville, oil tanks at Rotterdam and oil plants at Monheim, Bottrop and Gelsenkirchen.

Meanwhile, skirmishing by air, sea and land from Scotland to Africa ushered in a new week of European war.

Italy acknowledged the loss of

Spy Complaints Gain 10-Fold In Years' Time

Peak Number of 2,871 Reached During Single Day in May.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—(P)—Espionage complaints to the FBI increased 10-fold during the year ended June 30, Director J. Edgar Hoover reported today.

Hoover said that with the outbreak of war, work pertaining to national defense "increased materially," reaching a peak of 2,871 complaints on a single day in May.

The FBI investigated 16,885 defense matters during the year, compared with 1,651 in the previous year and 250 in 1938. Prior to 1938, the average for five years was only 35.

Hoover said that there had been "a negligible amount of sabotage in the second World War in contrast to a similar period in the first World War."

He reported that the FBI had surveyed 270 plants turning out defense material and had made recommendations for their protection.

With the objective of promoting closer co-ordination of activities by state and federal agencies in guarding against spies and saboteurs, governors and other officials of 42 states will meet tomorrow and Tuesday with federal officers.

Officials suggested that some changes in state and federal codes to meet problems arising from "Fifth Column" activities might be needed.

Youth, 12, 'Drowns' And Tells About It

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 4.—(P)—Twelve-year-old Raymond Newman is being pointed out in his neighborhood as the boy who "drowned" and lived to tell about it.

He was found yesterday at the bottom of a swimming pool as the water was drained.

John Nolan, 18-year-old life-guard, plunged in, brought the Newman boy to the surface and applied artificial respiration. Within 15 minutes Raymond was breathing freely.

"All I knew," he said, "was that I was swimming in the pool, and the next thing I woke up and I was in the hospital."

National Guard Request Before Senate Today

Military Committee Will Take Up Conscription Measure.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—(P)—President Roosevelt's request for authority to call the National Guard to active duty comes up in the senate tomorrow, first of four major defense measures on which committee or other action is anticipated during a momentous week of congress.

The Burke-Wadsworth conscription bill on which the senate military committee will vote tomorrow.

The $4,963,000,000 emergency defense appropriation bill. A senate appropriations subcommittee will begin hearings tomorrow and expects to complete them before the week is over.

The excess profits tax bill. The house ways and means committee is studying this proposal and has been urged by Mr. Roosevelt to take early action.

Many senators have linked the Guard proposal with conscription, believing the Guardsmen would be used to train conscripts. Opponents of the Burke-Wadsworth bill indicated, however, that they would not make a major fight against granting this authority to the President.

They may, however, offer an amendment to permit one-year enlistments in the army and to raise the basic army pay from $21 to $30 a month. Senator Wheeler, Democrat, Montana, and others have contended that conscription would be unnecessary if army pay were raised and the enlistment period lowered from the present three years.

KNOX ADVOCATES DRAFT MEASURE

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—(P)—Three supporters of compulsory military training spoke in favor of the program today on the grounds that it was necessary to the defense of the entire western hemisphere.

"Our hope of quarantining this vast struggle (the European war) and keeping it out of the western hemisphere rests almost entirely on the success of our efforts to build our defenses on such a scale and with enough speed that no combination of international brigands would dare to test our striking power," said Colonel Frank Knox, secretary of the navy.

Speaking with Colonel Knox on a radio hookup and advancing similar arguments were Judge Robert P. Patterson, newly appointed assistant secretary of war, and Colonel Julius C. Adler, civilian aide to the secretary of war and business manager of the New York Times.

Calling the war a "titanic struggle" for domination of the entire western world, Colonel Knox said an "unprepared" United States is "isolated amid it—not from the turmoil and danger."

"True, our navy will always be the first line of defense against a foreign aggressor, but until we get our two-ocean navy—and that is a matter of four years or more—land and air forces have an overall value and an importance that cannot be overestimated."

"And now we come to the greatest problem of the hour: manpower. We know from the experiences of the last World War and from the tragic examples of the countries now conquered, that it takes as long to train men as it does to build machines. Obviously, then, if we are to protect ourselves, our integrity and this hemisphere, we can take but one action."

"Adopt compulsory military training and adopt it now."

Judge Patterson said the United States, committed by the Monroe Doctrine to "maintain the integrity of the western hemisphere," needed an army of about 1,300,000 men and the way to get it was through compulsory military training—"the democratic way."

"Voluntary enlistment places the burden upon the patriotic few. Compulsory military training extends it to all."

AMENDED TAX LAWS IN DEFENSE URGED

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—(P)—The National Association of Manufacturers proposed today that congress amend the tax laws to permit companies engaged in manufacturing defense materials to recover the cost of special plants and equipment which might be "entirely worthless" at the end of the emergency.

other policyholders would suffer—and remember that only one in 3 or 4 policyholders has a policy loan. Therefore you do not withdraw your own money. Instead you simply borrow against your share—just as if you were borrowing on some government bonds you owned or any other kind of collateral.

As to the matter of interest rates, the main points to remember here are, first, that the rate has to be written into your policy when you take it out and may be in effect for 50 years, in periods of high interest and low interest. Second, under the law the companies must charge the same rate of interest for small and large loans—whether the amount borrowed is $5 or $5000.

Most of the loans are small ones and lending institutions are accustomed to charge a much higher rate on small loans than on large ones.

Your life insurance company simply tries to strike an average which, over the years, is fair to borrowing and non-borrowing policyholders alike.

NOTE: In this regular Monday column, paid for at advertising rates, the Institute of Life Insurance has asked its president to discuss questions of interest to life insurance policyholders. Inquiries may be addressed to 60 East 42nd Street, New York City.

and other British objectives in the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan.

Contrary to the Italian assertion that new British air attacks on the Libyan port of Derna caused only slight damage, a British communiqué at Cairo declared the harbor and airfield another submarine in an announcement bare of any detail.

According to British sources, this raised Italy's naval war losses to 15 submarines, a cruiser, three destroyers and a store ship.

Italians Claim Victory.

The Italian communiqué, however, reported crippling bombing attacks on Haifa, a rail center, there had been raided successfully three times Saturday.

Pilots of British Swordfish planes told today of a devastating attack on the port of Cagliari, on the Italian island of Sardinia, after they had vainly searched the entire western Mediterranean by sea and air for any trace of the Italian navy.

Four Hangars Destroyed.

The attack last Friday morning destroyed four Italian aviation hangars and four planes on the ground and destroyed or badly damaged other aviation buildings.

One of the cannon-armed, torpedo-carrying Swedish planes was shot down and another was forced down and captured, while three Italian planes were shot out of the air, the British said.

The attack was made from British aircraft carriers which steamed out of Gibraltar with other fleet units Wednesday morning on the 800-mile trip to Sardinia.

Conflicting versions also left in doubt the effect of heavy overnight German air attacks on Britain.

The Thames estuary, gateway to the Port of London, and the east coast of Scotland were the chief targets of the German night raiders but the British air ministry admitted no damage and no casualties.

Again a section of Wales was strewn with leaflets reprinting Hitler's "last offer" speech to the reichstag.

Two Nazi Planes Shot.

At least two of the German planes were reported destroyed. Two trawlers arriving at a southern English port said they bagged a bomber which tried to attack them.

Sinking of another trawler, attacked Friday by four German planes, was announced by the admiralty which said the ship bagged one of its assailants before going down.

On the other hand, the German high command declared an oil harbor near Liverpool was set afire by Nazi air bombs, anti-aircraft positions in Wales also were attacked and British raids on Germany scored only slight damage, all on nonmilitary targets.

A "preview" of the new France arising from the ashes of the third republic indicated one, unchanged political party with at least some of its chiefs wearing uniforms as the aides of Hitler and Mussolini do in Germany and Italy.

Pétain's Party.

Marcel Deat, one of the planners of the new French framework, said the party would belong to Chief of State Marshall Philippe Pétain and would be guided by precepts of "the great French family."

Depth charges from warships conveying liners which landed Canadian troops in the United Kingdom last week accounted for at least one and perhaps two enemy submarines, an officer of the naval escort said last night.

The submarines were detected near the big convoy on the last night the ships were at sea. A pair of warships immediately went into action.

U. S. Is Urged To Co-operate With Germans

Zandt, three times commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and now a congressman from Pennsylvania.

Lindbergh's speech was interrupted frequently by cheers and cries of "You tell em Lindy" from the crowd, which Police Captain M. J. Doyle estimated at 40,000, and the noted aviator smiled several times as he waited for the applause to subside.

In his broadcast (MBS) address, his third radio talk in connection with the European situation and its effect on this country, Colonel Lindbergh emphasized: "It is only by co-operation that we can maintain the supremacy of our western civilization and the right of our commerce to proceed unmolested throughout the world. Neither they nor we are strong enough to police the earth against the opposition of the other."

Asks "Peace Plan."

"In the past we have dealt with a Europe dominated by England and France. In the future we may have to deal with a Europe dominated by Germany. But whether England or Germany wins this war, western civilization will still depend upon two great centers, one in each hemisphere."

"With all the aids of modern science, neither of these centers is in a position to attack the other successfully as long as the defenses of both are reasonably strong."

"If we desire to keep America out of war, we must take the lead in offering a plan for peace. That plan should be based upon the welfare of America."

Lindbergh prefaced his speech with a remark that "I have a different outlook toward Europe than most people in America. In consequence, I am advised to speak guardedly on the subject of the war."

"I prefer to say what I believe, or not to speak at all," he commented.

The Democratic National Committee announced that Senator Scott Lucas, Democrat, Illinois, would reply to Colonel Lindbergh's remarks in an MBS broadcast at 10:15 o'clock (Atlanta time) tomorrow night.

Describing his travels through European countries from 1936 to 1939, Colonel Lindbergh recalled a Chinese proverb saying that "When the rich become too rich, and the poor too poor, something happens."

"This applies to nations as well as to men," he added. "When I saw the wealth of the British empire, I felt that the rich had become too rich. When I saw the poverty of central Europe, I felt that the poor had become too poor. That something would happen was blazoned even on the skies of Europe by mounting thousands of fighting aircraft."

Senator McCarran declared that "I never want to see the American flag whipped by the breeze on a foreign battlefield."

Lays Down Course.

He proclaimed that "as a people, having gone through the fire of experience and the crucible of war, we announce to the world here and now that we are not going to be drawn into a European tragedy—that the life of one American boy is worth more than all that can be gained by our involvement in the war now raging abroad."

Regarding proposals for compulsory military training, he said: "There is pending in congress a measure to bring about conscription; thus to enhance war psychology even when voluntary enlistments are ahead of schedule. This unnecessary undemocratic thing sought to be put forward in time of peace should be stopped."

Japanese Ask Military Bases In Indo-China

said last Friday he foresaw possible friction between Japan and the United States over the vital rubber resources of the Dutch East Indies.

"The rubber of the East Indies is indispensable for the industry of the United States and therefore the question may give rise to friction," he said. "The solution of this problem depends, however, on our decision."

"Japan henceforth can cover its demand for oil, tin and rubber in the Dutch East Indies," he was quoted as saying today.

Advices from Hanoi today said it was understood there that a section of the Japanese fleet had left Formosan ports and was heading for the south China coast near the Indo-Chinese border.

(Japan occupied the big Chinese island of Hainan off the Indo-Chinese coast early in the Chinese-Japanese conflict and is reported to have enlarged the small naval station which existed at Hanoi-ho, the Hainan capital. Airfields and other military establishments also have been constructed.)

Informants here said that the French authorities in Hanoi were co-operating with the Japanese to prevent military supplies from passing from Indo-Chinese territory into those areas of China controlled by Generalissimo Chiang's Chungking government. The French-Japanese agreement on this point gave the Japanese the right to station inspectors at communications points along the border between Indo-China and China. The French also granted the Japanese right to use commercial air fields in Indo-China for their planes plying between Japan and Siam.

PREPAREDNESS takes on new meaning

The year-in, year-out progressiveness of Georgia people—in their homes, stores, offices, factories, and on their farms—has always compelled this Company to look far ahead.

To illustrate . . . the new 60,000-horsepower generating station under construction at Macon, and the addition that will double the output of gigantic 100,000-horsepower Plant Atkinson near Atlanta, are essential phases in our preparedness program for Georgia—and Georgia's future growth.

These Georgia assets now become the nation's assets and in a few months will be ready to add their power to Georgia's inevitable big share in carrying out America's program of preparedness. This Company—as any other good citizen of Georgia—will be proud of any worthwhile work it can do in practical achievement of our country's present and future needs.

At a luncheon meeting I attended the other day the chairman announced a question period. The very first query from the floor was: "When I borrow on my life insurance policy, why do I have to pay interest? Am I not borrowing my own money?"

Inasmuch as several letters have asked the same question, I think it deserves an answer here. I can't cover the whole subject in this space, but I'll be glad to send a special memorandum to anyone who wants to go into the matter more thoroughly.

HERE, very briefly, is the situation. What insurance costs you is represented by the net amount you pay the insurance company. Now this net amount would be more if it were not for the interest earned by the investments represented by the reserves.

If you took any money out, you would be reducing the earning reserve funds by that amount, and if interest were not paid your premiums would have to go up. Otherwise the

Hebron's Sons On Pilgrimage To Old Shrine

Annual Gathering at North Georgia Church Attracts Many.

By HAROLD MARTIN.
Hebron's sons are scattered far, but every year, when the first Sunday in August comes, they make their way back to the square white church in the grove of oaks and the graves of their fathers on the sun-drenched hill.
The War of the Revolution was fresh in the minds of men and George Washington was ending his last year as President when Hebron came into being. Its founders were the pioneers, the restless, landless, younger men of the old colonial families, many with the burr of Scotland and the brogue of Ireland still thick on their tongues—who came with their teams and their tools to find a place to make their home.
They found it where the yellow Hudson rolls out of the northeast Georgia hills to join the Broad, and for 30 miles along its banks their axes began to ring.

Rough, Dangerous.
Men who had heard the battle shots of British redcoats heard the warwhoops of red Indians, for old Franklin county, the placid land which is now Banks, Jackson, Franklin, Madison and Hart was rough and dangerous country then.

They felled the virgin forests and cleared their fields—McEntires, McKies, McCarters and Burnsides, Littles, Carsons, Neels and Martins, Ashes, Alexanders, Keys and Ramseys—and as they worked they kept alive the faith of their Covenanters fathers.

They had no church in those first years—though missionaries on horseback rode out of the older settled land of South Carolina to preach to them in their homes and administer the sacrament.

Church Founded.
Hill finally, in 1796, John Newton came from the synod of South Carolina and stayed to found a church which they called Hebron.

It was a little log place, but it was a church, and from that day to this, men who bear the old names have been its pillars. And for 30 miles along the river the people came to it, in wagons and on horseback—like old Andrew Millican and his wife, who with their 15 children alternately walked and rode the 14 miles from their homes each meeting day.

The century turned, and in 1803 came Hebron's first great revival. It swept into the church so many that were new to it, the old log church became too small, and the elders began to ponder a new location.

First Grave.
It was not long after that the baby of William Ashe died and the elder of the church went to the mother. There was, they told her, a grove on a hill not far away in the place called "The Big Woods." If she would bury her baby there, they would clear that hill for a burial place for all time to come and near-by, where a cool spring gushed from a rock, they would build a new church.

"The Big Woods" was a lone-some place, and she must have hesitated. But there the baby was buried, under a plain slab of unmarked stone from the fields, and McWhorter Ashe became the first to sleep in Hebron churchyard.

There are many now. Old unmarked stones that mark the resting place of men whose names are now forgotten, white shafts of those who died in later years. The first little clearing has grown until now the churchyard spreads over the whole of the slope of the hill.

Not All Happy.
Not all of Hebron's years have been happy. The great revival was followed by lean years of dwindling faith. Restlessness seized the people. Emigration began. Younger sons began to turn their eyes farther west. A spirit of unbelief, blamed by Hebron folks upon Jefferson, in the president's chair, took hold of the young people. The new church building, so bravely begun, moved slowly toward completion.

The drinking of "ardent spirits," Miss Kate Johnson, the Hebron historian says, began to take its toll. Some of the old churchmen turned heavily to drink.

Finally, the pendulum swung again. The men of Hebron rose in their might until in all the stretch along the river every distillery was closed.

Good Accomplished.
Meanwhile, good had been accomplished. As old Hebron itself was the first Presbyterian church north of Athens, it founded the first Sunday school in north Georgia. All were welcome, black and white, and at the Sunday school, started in 1819, Negro slaves first learned to read from the Shorter Catechism and the Bible.

The years rolled on and the light of the faith flamed and grew dim, flamed and grew dim as pastors of varying power held it failed to hold the allegiance of its people.

Until 1852 up from Midway on the Georgia coast, Groves H. Cartledge came to take the pulpit at Hebron. His ministry lasted nearly 50 years. It saw the church begun so long before, completed at last in 1860. It saw that church outgrown and the new church that stands at Hebron now, begun in 1863. In the words of the church's chronicler, "his ministry was marked by drouth and copious showers," but on the whole it was a great period in Hebron's history.

Timeless Quality.
It is in the clean-kept graveyard on the sun-washed slope of the hill that the timeless quality of Hebron is felt. There are the old vaults where sleeps the dust of men who fought for freedom—men like Samuel McKie (here spelled Mackie) soldier and Christian.

There are the rough, hand-carved stones above the graves of the McEntires, marked by many a slip of the long-dead carver's hand but still as sturdy to wind and weather as the men who lie there were sturdy to the storms of life.

CLANS GATHER—Hebron, in Banks county near the Franklin county line, first Presbyterian church in northeast Georgia, began its protracted meeting yesterday as it has done on the first Sunday in August since George Washington's day. Above is seen a part of the crowd that gathered there from all over Georgia and surrounding states as the gathering of the clans turned the first day of meeting into a homecoming.

There are the white shafts to men who died at Vicksburg and at Gettysburg, and to men who died on the fields of France.

There are new graves there, with bright flowers on them. Old Hebron's sons feel this timeless quality, this linking of the old and the new, this tie that binds life to ancient life, blood to blood.

And they came back each year, from all over this country, and from many lands, as they did yesterday, to sit in the ancient benches, to sip the communal wine and break the communal bread, as they did when they were boys, as their fathers and their grandfathers did before them.

They find little change. The doctrine the Rev. H. R. Foster preaches today is the doctrine his predecessors preached. The men and women sit together now, where once they used to separate at the door. The wine is passed in separate cups, and the old pewter goblets from which their fathers drank are now being preserved by Miss Della Langford. But the pewter plates that bear the bread are just the same, and they sit, as their fathers sat, at one long table for communion.

Then they go out to the graves on the hillside and stand silent for awhile, each group by the graves of its fathers, while the wind in the oaks talks faintly to them in the whispered voices of those now gone.

They find strength there, strength and a sense of the ages of earth that are in them, and a hope that may best be expressed by the epitaph that one of them wrote for a sister who died:

It said:
"While earthly things decay and rust
And petals fall from the shattered bowl
And dust returning always unto dust
God ever keeps the snow-white soul."

Farm Produce Export Outlook Declared Dark

No U. S. Improvement Seen Until End of European Conflict.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—(AP)—The Agriculture Department described the immediate outlook for export of American farm products as "highly unsatisfactory" today and expressed the belief that there would be no improvement until after the end of the European war. Continental European markets which furnished an outlet in recent years for approximately a third of United States farm exports, are now closed.

"Except for an increase in the demand for evaporated milk and the possibility of some increases in the demand for pork and for dried and canned fruits and vegetables, no improvement in the export situation is likely," the department said in an outlook report.

Cotton growers, faced by what the department described as a "gloomy export picture," have been able to find consolation in increased textile activity in this country. The department said domestic mill consumption of cotton for the current marketing year now seems likely to reach 7,750,000 bales. Consumption in the past season totalled 6,858,000 bales.

Bill Chappell May Be Put On Stand Today

More Testimony That He Was Asleep During Peek Ride Expected.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

MARIETTA, Ga., Aug. 4.—Further testimony that Bill Chappell was at home asleep at the hour he was declared by Lewis Turner, the state's star witness, to be in company with J. Ed Peek and his wife on the night of their death, was promised by the defense when the Peek case is resumed in Cobb superior court tomorrow morning.

Attorneys for the defense said today they have some 30 additional witnesses ready to testify on the first day of the second trial week, some of whom would be placed on the stand to show that the accused was sleeping at 10 or 10:30 o'clock, which hours the state claims Mr. and Mrs. Peek were out on a spree of drinking with the defendant, two convicts and an inmate of the Carroll county almshouse.

W. Hamp Chappell, Carroll county commissioner and father of switch-the defendant, his wife and other members of his family, including Miss Dorothy Chappell, who has been near her brother every day since his arrest in May, will be among first defense witnesses to take the stand tomorrow.

While the defense has under subpoena witnesses to carry the trial on for another several days, a spokesman indicated last night the defendant may be called to the stand before Tuesday. The state was expected to consume some time with rebuttal testimony.

Much interest is attached in the elder Chappell's scheduled appearance on the stand tomorrow, since he has been accused by the state of graft and hiding out his son, Turner and others during earlier investigation of the Peek murders.

Young Chappell is on trial alone for the murder of Peek. The other three are indicted jointly for the murders of Peek and his wife.

Million - Dollar Gain Is Shown By Coca-Cola

Volume During Second Quarter Largest in Company's History.

Net earnings of the Coca-Cola Company for the first six months of 1940 showed a gain of $1,057,985 over the same period last year, officials of the company announced here yesterday, adding that the volume of operation during the second quarter was the largest in the company's history.

The total company net earnings for the first half of 1940 is $14,130,170, as compared with $13,072,185 for the first six months of 1939. The 1940 gain was made despite a 44 per cent increase in reserves for taxes, the officials said. Net earnings for the second quarter before income tax reductions totaled $12,210,503, an increase of $1,440,082 over the second quarter of 1939.

After reserves for taxes, Class A dividends and other charges, net profit applicable to common stock for the quarter ended June 30 was $8,584,503 compared with $8,254,421 for the second quarter of 1939.

For the first half of 1940 net earnings before income taxes were $19,843,170 compared with $17,295,085 for the same portion of 1939. Reserves for taxes in the half year were $4,813,000 compared with $3,322,900 in the corresponding half of 1939, an increase of 44 per cent.

A dividend of 75 cents per share on common stock was declared on August 3 payable October 1 to stockholders of record at the close of business September 12.

ATLANTA, GA., AUGUST 5, 1940.

—And All's Well—

There must be, today, millions of spirits that walk, bravely, across the length and breadth of beleaguered Britain. The spirits of those men of the ancient race who gave to her the greatness that is knowing miraculous resurgence as, once more, the fate of human liberty is laid upon her hands and hearts and courage.

It is good to think that, among those spirits, walk the ancient watchmen of the night, carrying their lanterns to light the dark hours and crying, as they walk, "Twelve o'clock, and all's well." All's well with Britain, as her sons and daughters stand, undaunted, a final rampart to the ruthless foe.

All's well because the tongue of Chaucer, of Shakespeare, of Milton, of Keats, of Shelley, of Kipling, of Tennyson, of Barrie, of the King James translation of the Scriptures, can never be the tongue of an enslaved race.

All's well because the blood of Froisher, of Drake, of Raleigh, of Cromwell, of Wellington, of Nelson, of the millions of fighting men who have died to keep Britain free, can never course through the veins of an enslaved people.

All's well because the passion for human liberty and human rights that inspired the men of Runnymede, that set aflame the hearts of men who dared their all that tyranny should be crushed, that forced British democracy ever to march on, side by side and step by step with the growth of empire, can never be quenched under the oppression of any master.

All's well in Britain because the common people are aroused, because from the ordinary, average people, from whom England's greatest have ever come, there still arises that determination, that bulldog stubbornness, that unconquerable spirit which cannot live enslaved.

The wisest seers among men cannot say what yet is to come. But this all men may know. There is a very lovely heart of civilization and of freedom threatened by an obscene force, an indecent return to savagery sparked by unmoral ambition. The shadow today lies over an ancient and a noble land. It darkens the graves of poets and philosophers and martyrs. It hangs, threatening, over the very birthplace of human liberty and human progress.

The vultures soar over England's green fields and stately homes, they swoop upon the humble cots and quiet hills.

We on this side can know little of the one factor that must, in the final accounting, decide the issue. That is, the spirit of a people awakened and determined. There must be a marvellous story, being told on the pages of history, in Britain today. The spectacle of a people arising, as one, to defend to death the land they hold so dear, must be a tremendous thing to watch.

Even Hitler has been awed. What other interpretation can be put upon his petulant and ridiculous complaint that "home guards" can be only violators of the code of war, to be shot against a wall when captured? The world has never witnessed such absurd effrontery as an appeal, by this man, to any code of war. He, and Germany, of all races, have most ruthlessly and heartlessly scorned the codes of war, of honor, of humanity, of human decency, whenever it served their foul purpose.

Hitler cannot conquer Britain. We who know the history and the spirit and the meaning of British civilization, we who know the courage that arms her people, we who know the love of country that fills their souls, know that no invader can stay alive on English soil so long as one Englishman remains alive to strike a blow for freedom.

There can be but one outcome when the British people have arisen, moved by a single impulse, to defend.

This royal throne of kings, this sceptred isle,
This earth of majesty, this seat of Mars,
This other Eden, demi-paradise;
This fortress, built by Nature for herself,
Against infection and the hand of war,
This happy breed of men, this little world,
This precious stone set in the silver sea,

Which serves it in the office of a wall
Or as a moat defensive to a house—
Against the envy of less happier lands—
This blessed plot, this earth, this realm,
This England.

The vultures gather, but still the spirit of the ancient watchman walks in England and still his brave voice reassures.

"Twelve o'clock, and all's well!"

What romance there is in such names as the Burma road. How fortunate that some progressive highway board has not taken over, and renamed it B-112.

Weeds of Value

It is not often in these dismal days that science turns up something on the cheerful side. Thus heartily refreshing is the news from two University of California scientists, Dr. Theodore Winnick and Dr. David Greenberg. These erudite researchers have extremely kind words to say for two members of the plant family which have been roundly and soundly cursed by untold generations of farmers and gardeners—milkweed and horse-nettles.

The weeds, botanically speaking, have been promoted. According to the California scientists, the weeds and nettles have been found to be rich in enzymes, which decompose proteins. This means, continue the scientists, that extracts from the pestiferous weeds, especially from their seeds and sap, can perform many important jobs for good old homo sapiens. For instance, these extracts can make the toughest steak as tender as the proverbial bird's ear. They also can be used to wreak havoc on such ills as tape worms and other intestinal parasites. And that's not all. They can relieve digestive disorders, speed up commercial processing of meats, accelerate the curing of hides for tanning and the preparation of biological specimens for museums.

The discovery of these researchers is important. Their salute to the lowly milkweed and horse-nettle is sincere and will be echoed by many persons. Yet it is still highly doubtful if these discoveries will lessen any of the old maledictions on the plants, as far as farmers and the common, or garden, variety of gardeners go. Is it too much to ask of the farmers and the gardeners that they readjust their feelings toward these plants, now that they have been promoted?

Since the days of the dust storms, 300,000 residents have left the Dakotas. Presumably looking for the Dakotas.

Getting To Work

There are constantly mounting evidences that the nation, spurred by the demands of war in Europe and preparedness at home, is rapidly gearing itself to a new and highly accelerated economy.

Leading industrial stocks show a 37 per cent increase in earnings for the past quarter, despite much heavier taxation. Unemployment figures reveal a sharp drop. Workers are being called back to bench and lathe and furnace and the nation is getting down to the job of production with a will.

Trade in this, the sixth Federal Reserve district, showed large gains for the first six months of this year over the same period a year ago. Despite a slump in June, partly seasonal and partly due to adverse weather, department store sales in the district were up 7 per cent, wholesale trade was up 5 per cent, business failures were fewer, construction contracts increased 14 per cent and building permits rose 40 per cent.

All of which adds up, once again, to the fact that more people are at work, bringing in the regular pay envelopes and salary checks, hence there is more money to spend.

It is easy to see the foundation for the optimism of various industrial and commercial leaders who all predict a fall and winter of such prosperity that the days of the great depression will, finally, be forgotten.

Each day some unexpected new side of the candidate, Willkie, is revealed. It turns out he is a type who relaxes at a rodeo.

A world-famous physicist is a man who can put together a theory of the universe and is outguessed by a cantaloupe.

Editorial of the Day

FEED THE HUNGRY?

(From The Birmingham News.)

One of the hard questions which may haunt the American conscience and try men's souls is whether or not the people of this nation should send food to a starving Europe.

England is fighting with her traditional weapon, the blockade. France, Poland, Norway and other conquered lands now under the rule of the Nazis are feeling the first pangs of hunger. Soon, unless things change, Frenchmen, Poles, Norwegians and other Europeans may be starving.

What should America, which is sympathetic with the British cause and which hates the Nazi rule, do?

When women and children are starving can we, in America, passing judgments with full stomachs and full larders, refuse to help them because we do not want to help Adolf Hitler at the same time? Can we sit by and let women and children starve because "it is Germany's problem?"

When people are in distress, does the Good Samaritan stop to ask the consequences of relieving that distress? Does not the hunter rescue the trapped wolf cub, even though he seeks the older wolf?

When humanity cries out for help, can we refuse that help, even though we feed the women and the children of the very enemy?

Many Americans, asking themselves such questions as these, will answer them affirmatively. They will feel that it is the humanitarian duty of the United States to feed the hungry victims of Europe's war, regardless of its effects on the course of the conflict.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

TACKLING THE FIFTH COLUMN WASHINGTON, Aug. 4. At last, there is an excellent prospect for decisive action to prevent Fifth Column activity in the United States. Following discussion of the problem at the Havana conference, State and Justice Department authorities have agreed that the German and Italian embassies and consulates here must be firmly warned to watch their steps or look for trouble.

The time for such action is certainly at hand. Of course, this country has not yet been afflicted with such vast hordes of German and Italian "diplomats"—actually agents-provocateurs using diplomatic privileges to shield their activities—as have invaded several South and Central American nations. But reports are current of some surprising increases in embassy staffs and, much more serious, of highly objectionable activities in many of the consulates.

The recent disclosures regarding the German commercial counselor, Gerhard Westrick, who is peddling Nazism and denouncing the defense program to any New York businessmen stupid enough to listen, form an important case in point. Similar agents are selling the same line of goods, with somewhat more success, in many of the western cities.

The German consulates in Boston, New Orleans and San Francisco are headed by remarkably important Nazi party members, who are given means to live on a scale far beyond that required for ordinary consuls, and whose presence and purpose in this country need considerable explanation. The truth is that the American government has waited a long time to demand the whys and wherefores of men like Dr. Herbert Scholz in Boston and Captain Fritz Weidemann in San Francisco. The period of waiting has now come to an end.

THE PAID PRESS

The effort to repress propaganda work by German and Italian agents masquerading as other American nations agreed on at Havana. But the attack on the Fifth Column will also go further.

Until recently, an almost incredible complacency as to the Fifth Column danger reigned at the Justice Department. There was not the slightest attempt, for example, to follow what was being said in the foreign language press, although it is common knowledge that a fair number of the foreign language newspapers receive some sort of subsidy from abroad. As soon as these newspapers began to be read with care, the Justice Department realized that several of them, especially Italian ones, were carrying on open propaganda campaign against American foreign policy and the defense program, and in favor of the Nazi-Fascist axis.

This is, of course, perfectly legal. There is no constitutional recourse, either against newspapers of this type, or against the numerous pamphlets which German, Italian and Russian agents have printed and circulated among foreign language groups and Nazi-Fascist-Communist sympathizers. Several younger men in the Justice Department are working on a plan, however, for a pure talk and writing act. It would require any publication, whether newspaper, pamphlet or book, which gets financing directly or indirectly or receives direct or indirect advertising from a foreign government, to disclose the fact plainly to prospective readers.

NEW WATCHFULNESS

There is less evidence that the Soviet Union has abused diplomatic privileges, extended by this country, since Communist agents commonly avoid the regular Russian officials stationed here. Nevertheless the Justice Department is watching the Communists as closely as the German Nazis and the Italian Fascists.

All groups and societies with Nazi, Fascist or Communist affiliations are now under constant surveillance. Efforts to uncover foreign agents, who have failed to register as the law requires, are being greatly intensified. The Federal Bureau of Investigation is daily increasing the number of its staff charged with preventing industrial sabotage and espionage.

Simultaneously, the system of alien control is being set up as rapidly as possible. The registration and identification of all resident aliens is now under way. Special attention will be paid to the vast number of aliens illegally in this country, and to the 16,000 to 20,000 who are here under temporary visitors' permits. In general, it may be said that more is being done than anyone had either imagined or hoped for.

One serious problem has already arisen, in the tendency of states and cities to pass cruel and unnecessary anti-alien ordinances. But few men have firmer convictions on the civil liberties than Attorney General Robert H. Jackson, and although he has decided to deal as firmly as possible with the Fifth Column danger, the signs are he can be relied on not to go too far.

Letters

From England.

For today's column, a couple of letters from England. One from a daughter in England to her parents in America, beseeching them not to worry. The second from one member of a family in England, to another over here, declaring that living in England today is "superb."

The first:

"Lay Off Worry."

"Bristol, 12th June, 1940.

"Well, the Wops are in now, and to you it must sound like the final notes of the Last Trump—so it is just another job of work; we are only surprised that they have bothered to wait so long. In a way it is a pity that you are so far away, as you only get the noise and jitter of the press and radio, and that makes you rattle around. Here we get both sides of the picture, and that makes things a lot easier. Of course we listen to the news and I own that we take it with all the gravity it deserves, and we read the papers and take them in too—but we also see the faces of the things we have done and are doing to counteract the evil, and we hear the voices of the people who are doing real miracles, and we see the ones who have come back and are just burning to get out again and finish it off. And above all we see the faces of the people in the streets and hear their voices, and there is no panic and no fear, only complete confidence and determination."

"I wonder if you two, and particularly Father, could try not worrying, at least about us personally. Worry is a very sterile thing, and once it starts it is apt to attain enormous proportions, and then it is the worst of enemies. I think you can understand what I mean, and do all you can to fight against it and give the Old Man a hand to do the same. I don't mean in the least that we are unaware of what may happen, or that we underestimate the strength of the Germans, but only that worry is not only useless but dangerous and harmful, and that we refuse to have it. Of course, if we try, we could paint a wonderful possible picture of what may happen—a bombed house, mutilated children, either or both of us dead or maimed, a lost job, starvation and disease, and in an impersonal way the end of the world we know, with no trust or culture, and no point or reason for living even supposing we are lucky enough to survive. All very fearful and quite within the bounds of possibility, but what is the name of anything is the point of holding that picture before one's eyes except as a pot-hole to be avoided, and a risk to fight against. If you merely stop writing to us of such things it is just as useless. What we both implore you to do is to stop letting them impress you, in short to stop worrying. Every time we get a letter saying that the forces of evil are now striking England, or that the old world is over and terror is over the whole of Europe it is like a heap of dust that we have to clear away before we can get on with the rest of the work."

"It is so difficult to persuade you that it is possible to see danger and not fear it, to live under terror and not succumb to it. We feel most calm and happy, and in our house and our children, and above all in each other we have riches that no one can take from us, even though they burn the house and kill the children and us—for then we are not there to feel the misery, and if there is anything left we have it, and the strength to start again—but only if we know it and you know it. So lay off the destructive worry and remember that at least entertain no thoughts of defeat."

Latimer's

Candle—"

And here's the second letter:

Oxford, 21st June, 1940

"My very dear: "If it takes events of this magnitude to make me write to you so often you will of course say that it is well worth it. And you will be quite right."

"As a matter of fact you cannot imagine what it is to be living in England at the present moment. Exhilarating is too mild a word. It is superb. Living with a capital 'L'—not occupying ground space between the events of birth and death."

"I am quite sure that the collapse of France, catastrophic as it may have seemed and may still prove to be when the terms are known, has given England a fillip which nothing else could have done. We are slow to realize events which are happening outside our own country. The poor people know no geography to speak of and Belgium, Flanders, Holland and France mean precious little to them. But to know that they do now that we are alone with no allies either to help us or to let us down, and that what is going to happen will happen in this very country, is within the grasp of all and has stiffened the determination of the man in the street without any doubt at all."

"We also feel that it is an honor unspeakable to be the last defenders of liberty in Europe. Everyone is conscious that he or she must not be found wanting when the testing time comes, be it as civilians or defenders. There is a sense of calm before a storm."

"Life goes on as usual with a curious sense of waiting for something to happen. You plan no further ahead than tomorrow, and even that is uncertain. Our children are evacuated from London to be bombed in South Wales and our soldiers escape death at Dunkirk to find it during their first night's leave at Newcastle. Safety doesn't exist, but who minds about safety? Latimer's candle wasn't lit with a safety match."

Thoughts

Given Free

NEW YORK. Aug. 4.—I don't know why I am always giving away, free, the marvelous thoughts which grow in such profusion in my wonderful brain, but suppose we just put it down to my generous Italian nature and proceed to this day's love-gift which is offered to Mr. Wendell Willkie, a man I have met but once—and that time only barely.

In view of the insinuations which have been tossed around concerning Mr. Willkie's service on the side of wealth and the suggestion that he must, therefore, himself be a money lover, I propose that right now Mr. Willkie draw up a schedule of every dollar's worth of property and every cent of money that he owns, down to the rustiest curly-handled masher in his golf bag and the change in his pants and require every member of his family to do the same, and file these documents in some public record or tack them on the courthouse door of his old home town.

I propose that he promise that if he is elected he will require every member of his cabinet to do the same and that he state publicly that he and every member of his family own no money, has any control and the cabinet members and their families will not exploit public office, directly or indirectly, for private profit beyond the salaries provided by law.

Intent of

Proposal

Not being a lawyer, I will just skip the legalistic bullet-proofing and concentrate on the intent of this proposal, which is that Mr. Willkie should throw everything on the blanket for a public counting before election and guarantee to do the same again at the end of his term, if any, and promise that he will not quit office with a dollar more than he had when he went in, except such amounts as he can prove to have been saved out of his salary.

No writing for magazines or syndicates, for high prices by relatives as yet untouched by literary genius, no sales indorsements or radio performances for pay, no insurance business between members of his family and interests which are subject to whimsical interpretations of laws or codes by government bureaus and no hundred-thousand-dollar mock jobs for any cousins or aunts with any liquor, movie or shipping interests, under penalty of public repudiation of such cousins or aunts which would destroy the only possible motive for their employment in such jobs.

Mr. Willkie, being a lawyer, can dress up this idea so that it can stand inspection and expand it to include other members of the national administration, even to the degree of precluding the employment of never-do-well brothers-in-law of important business in $4,800-$6,000 jobs counting paper clips or keeping scrapbooks. He should cover it with a statement of the general principle that public officials have a moral obligation not to enrich themselves on the side or permit relatives over whom they have control to exploit their relationship for profit.

Aid Morals

Of All People

To be sure, this would be in the nature of a dig at the Roosevelt family, but, after all, they have been asking for it—all except young Franklin and Johnny—but it would also hunk a noble note addressed to such public servants as Ed Kelly and Frank Hague and, in a wider sense, to the morals of all the people.

The insinuations that because Willkie has served big corporations he probably will peel the gift off the capitol dome and carry off a trunkload of samples from the thousand-dollar-bill department of the treasury, give him an excellent invitation to declare himself on the subject of private gain and the exploitation of office by the relatives of public men and a fine opportunity to state the proposition that respectable public servants don't get rich beyond their official pay.

If anyone gets a split lip that won't be the fault of Mr. Willkie, but of the victim, who should not be in the way of his swing. There are many public officials, and we all know, who carry on profitable private dealings with government or sub-government agencies through relatives, and Mr. Willkie, with his knack for that kind of saying, should be able to round up this practice, too, in the scope of his condemnation.

Ideas like this may sound easy, but you have no idea of the strain.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

VERY LATE AT THE OFFICE

I like it, now and then, very late at the office. I mean, when the late work is all done, when the presses have stopped, when the streets are quiet, when the only bright spot to be seen from the fourth-floor window is George and Angelo's all-night restaurant across the street.

I like it, too, because then the radios are quiet. If you flip one on there is no speaker telling you what a great thing Jefferson built. They all have different ideas about what Jefferson built. The Sage of Monticello, who no doubt long ago quit tuning in on his celestial receiving set, is the most quoted man on the airwaves.

All the makers of "Big Medicine," Republican and Democrat; all the "bolters," trying to sound high and mighty and very close friends of Jefferson; all the saviors of democracy—

All the "boys" who don't want to pay their share of the preparedness plans and the taxes—

All those who want to "organize" for peace and who cannot explain that phrase—

All those who refuse to see that Hitler, Mussolini and Stalin and the Japanese army leaders, all are joined up to destroy the existing order of things—

Those who never gave a cent to help the hungry, dirty, uneducated kids in slums or on share-cropper farms, but who think it is a lark and "really-the-thing-to-do," to ask for a refugee child from Europe—thus injuring the real program—

All of them are off the air when one is very late at the office.

It is very nice. Jefferson must be glad when the late hour comes and he can tune in on a dance band instead of some sweating speaker telling us what Jefferson would do.

THE APPEASERS

Very early in the morning, with only the purring fan going and an occasional truck rattling down the street to make a noise, I do not think much of the appeasers.

Sometimes I wonder about some of our men, of business, of finance, of teaching, of newspapers, who, while the world burns, can only say we must return to the "American way and the principles of Jefferson."

At times I would like to talk back into the radio and ask, "Have you read a single book on Jefferson? And if so, what were his principles?"

Does it mean anything to them that Premier Molotov made a speech the other day?

He practically said a new agreement was in the making with Italy, long with Germany the foe of Communism. It soon will be announced.

He intimated, too, that a rapprochement, or deal, with Japan, was in the making.

Is it not perfectly plain that this no longer is a duel between the have-nots and the haves, but a world revolution of one set of powers against another which has for its purposes the destroying of an old order and the dividing up of territory?

I hope, if the crisis does come, they give Wheeler, Vandenberg and others of their camp, coonskin caps and flintlock muskets and send them out against tanks and flame-throwers.

THE QUICK AND THE DEAD

A few hours earlier I had listened to a man who have opposed our preparedness plans.

I recalled an old story I had once from a man who saw something in France back in July, 1918. He told me that he came up during the night with some trucks to a place known as Trugny, not very far from Chateau Thierry. All that night, he said, the big guns had been shelling a place not far from them. The fight had been going on all the day before.

He said that when morning came some of them went out to find out where they were and to get some bearings. He said they came to some fields in rolling country. As far as they could see, there were dead Americans. They were sprawled out in groups of dead.

Most of them were New Englanders, he said. He knew because they got pressed into service taking things out of their pockets and identifying the dead. They were of the 26th Division, he said. And the reason so many had been killed were they didn't know what to do. They had not been trained more than six or eight weeks. They didn't know, and neither did their officers, what to do when caught in shell fire.

They were a volunteer division. They had "sprung to arms" to defend their country.

I remember another story of some Texas boys who came up one night as replacements. One company got 20 of them and the next morning 18 were dead because they didn't know about their gas masks. This officer kept telling about them, big, raw-boned, fine-looking boys, dead of ignorance and then gas.

The fat and the skinny members of congress; the persons who get publicity by saying, "Let's organize for peace," and objecting to training; the women's organizations who protest against any military training of their sons—

Very late at the office I don't think much of them. Especially do I object to those who are so intimately in touch with the ecstasies of Jefferson's mind.

Junior Wildlife Rangers Off On Wisconsin Trip

Eight Georgia Boys To Study Conservation Work on Tour.

A bus trip to school and back and a Saturday afternoon junket to town is as close to a long trip as many Georgia farm boys ever come.

A trip to another state to them is like a summer abroad, topped by a winter "course in arts" in what used to be Paris to a debutante.

So it is to eight Junior Wildlife Rangers who yesterday left here for a two-weeks' tour of Wisconsin, where they will study the conservation program and its results of one of the nation's leaders in restoration of natural resources. Wisconsin is the muskie state, a state that is thickly dotted with lakes heavily stocked with the fighting muskellunge.

Going After Muskie. "That's what I'm going after," said Howard Bowles, of Augusta. "I've always wanted to catch a rainbow trout and a muskie. After I get my muskie I'm going to north Georgia for my rainbow."

Emerson Bryson, of Preston, who at 15 is the baby of the group, took the trip seriously. "I want to find out how they do things up there—how they grow fish and game birds and animals. That's what I'm interested in so I can come back and do the same thing at home."

Bryson and Bowles, like the other six Junior Rangers, were on their trip to Wisconsin in the statewide contest sponsored by the Division of Wildlife. They were chosen as the outstanding boys among 8,000 entered in a contest. Some of them have game bird projects and others have fish pond programs. Several of the winners are carrying out a dual program which comprises planned management of both fish and bird areas.

Make Trip. Besides Bryson and Bowles, the following boys made the trip: P. F. Swilley, Valdosta; Edwin Chastain, Marietta; John W. Payne, Allentown; Mark Hiram Carter, Valdosta; Jerome Webb, Hahira; and Dick Stearns, Augusta.

They were accompanied by Bob Atkins, educational director of the Wild Life Division; Clyde Greenway, and E. W. Able, vocational teachers, and John T. Baile, county agent of Webster county.

They will be greeted at Madison by the Governor of Wisconsin and as guests of the Wisconsin Conservation Department will view fisheries, pheasant and mink farms, and tour several of the larger streams and lakes of the state. A one-day trip to Canada will be included and a boat ride on Lake Superior will climax the expedition.

Emory Summer Enrollment Gains

A total of 78 more students are registered for the second term of Emory University's summer quarter than were enrolled for the same period in 1939, according to figures released yesterday by Professor J. G. Stipe, director of admissions and registrar at Emory.

There are 480 students enrolled in all divisions of Emory University now, compared to the 402 registered this time last year, Professor Stipe reported. Total enrollment for both terms of the summer quarter, including students who were registered for one or both terms is 790, he said. Last year's total was 673.

Good Morning—By Louie D. Newton

Five days with one's family at the seashore, away from the telephone, away from the noise and stress of a crowded city, is enough to evoke the truly thankful note in any heart. Such was my privilege last week. I am more convinced than ever that the wage was entirely correct who, when viewing the ocean for the first time, remarked, "She is a success."

Henry Van Dyke puts it a bit more poetically when he declares: "We trust in Thee, what's befall, Thy sea is great, our boats are small."

We had a great week, looking at the ocean, riding on the ocean, swimming in the ocean. Refreshed by the constant breezes that swept inland from the sea, we went to sleep at night with the music of the waves in our ears and awoke each dawn with the sound of the wind and waves as restful as ever.

The fishing was good, as it always is. I can't imagine an unsuccessful fishing trip, unless there should be some accident. Just to be near enough some body of water, small or large, to cast a line is my idea of a good time. And when you go fishing with your family, with the limitless challenge of the open sea, it is just about perfect.

We were at Jacksonville Beach, and we fished from Mayport to St. Augustine. That is a considerable amount of territory, as one will readily see. We left plenty of fish there for the next party. Every sort of fish from sail to cat were biting—more cats, perhaps, than sail.

We met Georgians everywhere we went, which added much to the enjoyment of the week. It is a mighty fine thing to see Georgia tags on the automobiles when you drive up to a strange place—better still to see the people that ride in these "Peach State" cars. Many Georgians have summer cottages along the Florida coast, others go there for shorter periods, stopping at the many delightful hotels and camps, all moderately priced.

We had an enjoyable trip across Georgia on Monday. The crops are very good. When we reached the tobacco belt we saw much activity in preparation for the opening market. They told us that the crop was very good this year, and they are hoping to get at least an average price for the leaf. The cotton has been injured by the rains of early July, but several farmers expressed the opinion that they would probably get as much for what they make as they would have received for a larger crop. There will be plenty of corn and other food crops this year, which

F.D.R. Spends Sunday In Complete Relaxation

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Aug. 4.—(P)—President Roosevelt spent Sunday in complete relaxation at his family home above the Hudson.

He passed up church and his customary automobile ride to rest. Aides said Mr. Roosevelt had no visitors today and no specific plans for his stay here, which is expected to last through the week. Whether the President will inspect defense activities within easy reach of Hyde Park probably will be announced at a press conference Tuesday.

Body of Reds' Catcher Sent To California

Hershberger, Depressed by Losses, Ends Life With Razor.

BOSTON, Aug. 4.—(AP)—While his teammates were dividing a double-header with the Boston Bees, the body of Willard M. Hershberger, suicide second-string catcher of the Cincinnati Reds, was sent by train today to his widowed mother in Bisalia, Cal.

Hershberger, apparently depressed by his own recent playing and that of the National league-leading Reds in the current Boston series, was found dead late yesterday afternoon in a downtown hotel, his jugular vein slashed by a razor. Medical Examiner Timothy Leary said he was a suicide.

The 29-year-old catcher, who was serving his third season with Cincinnati, had been moody for the past few days, club officials said, and had complained that he was sick.

While Hershberger had been batting over .300 this season, Manager Bill McKechnie said that the catcher appeared in low spirits after a recent game in New York because he had called the "wrong pitches."

McKechnie and other club officials said they became concerned about this mental state Friday night after the Reds dropped a double-header to the Bees. The Cincinnati manager talked with the young catcher for some time and after that, they said, he appeared in much better spirits.

Club officials last heard from Hershberger yesterday afternoon when they telephoned him at the hotel after he failed to appear at the park.

He answered: "I'm sick and can't play, but I'll come out right away anyway."

His body was found in a bathtub in his hotel room a few hours later.

Guldahl Stages Stretch Finish To Take Meet

Ralph's 16-Under-Par 268 Wins $5,000 Milwaukee Open.

MILWAUKEE, Aug. 4.—(AP)—Putting on one of the great "stretch" finishes for which he long has been famed, big Ralph Guldahl, of Chicago, carded a final round 67 today to win the $5,000 Milwaukee Open golf championship with a 72-hole total of 268 strokes, 16 under par for the North Hills course.

Guldahl, twice winner of the National Open, played like a great champion today. Three strokes behind Johnny Bulla, of Chicago, at the 54-hole mark—with Bulla's total of 197 an all-time Professional Golfers' Association record for 54 holes—Guldahl came on with an amazing finish, scoring a final nine 32 as Bulla folded to wind up with a 272 aggregate.

Guldahl's four rounds were 68-67-66-67 over the par 71 North Hills layout. All were great performances, but his play on the final nine holes was the highlight of a tournament the finish of which was one of the closest in F. G. A. history.

At the end of 63 holes, Bulla was in front with 233 strokes, three under the total held at that point by Guldahl, with whom Bulla was playing.

Coming home on the last nine, Guldahl had a four under par 32 as Bulla took a flock of bogies to wind up with a 39, three over par for a final round 75. Bulla, whose 197 total at 54 holes clips one stroke off the previous 54-hole P. G. A. mark held jointly by Byron Nelson and Craig Wood, previously had rounds of 66-65-66.

Shortly after Guldahl had finished, Ed Oliver, of Hornell, N. Y., came in with a final round 68 for a 270 aggregate good for second place. His previous rounds were 66-66-70.

Sam Sneed finished with a great rush, getting a last round 65, day's low score for a 271 total.

One shot back, bracketed with Bulla, was Ben Hogan, of White Plains, N. Y., leading money winner of the year. Hogan had rounds today of 66-68.

All in The Game

BY JACK TROY

Wildlife It is interesting to note that a couple of the gubernatorial candidates have touched on the wild life situation. But what is more interesting is their seeming lack of knowledge on the subject.

The candidates mentioned; judging by what they've said, simply have touched on Georgia's wildlife because it is a vote-getting proposition.

The other day one of the candidates said he favored free fishing in your own county.

You don't have to buy a license to fish in your own county now—provided you don't use a rod and reel or live bait.

If you use a rod and reel you are not a fisherman. You're an optimist.

The other candidate said he wanted to do something about deer in north Georgia. He said he had given three deer once and they're gone.

Actually, there is going to be a big deer hunt in north Georgia this fall. One reserve that hasn't been opened in 15 years will be available for deer hunting. There will be other deer hunting.

What gets me about the state wildlife situation is that it still is a political football. Fine progress is being made right now, but what will happen when a new governor takes office? Nothing except that there probably will be a brand new wildlife administration, if custom is followed, and there may be the same old seven and six for a few more years.

It is unfortunate that the legislature can't see fit to authorize a bill to make this branch of the state a separate and self-sustaining entity, and thus assure something definite for the future.

Meanwhile, gubernatorial candidates mention wildlife in their speeches, bearing in mind that the voters who hunt and fish add to up a considerable number.

Just a Myth It doesn't mean a thing, so far as final result is concerned, whether or not a team is leading the National League on July 4.

As a matter of fact, only once since 1934 has the team that led on August 1 finished as the pennant winner. Great stretch finishes have featured each race.

Last year the Reds held an 11-game lead around August 1, but had to fight off a determined Cardinal challenge. It is somewhat interesting to see how some of the other finishes blasted the July 4th myth. Here they are—

1938—Pirates led by seven and one-half games on August 1, but Cubs topped final.

1937—Cubs were six games ahead of Giants on August 1. The Giants were in the World Series.

1936—Cubs had a seven-game lead August 1 over the Giants, who won the pennant.

1935—Giants led the Cubs by six games August 1, but Cubs took bunting.

1934—Cardinals headed into August five and a half games behind, but finished on top.

The Cincinnati Reds may repeat this year. They hold a lead as substantial as the one they had at the half-way mark.

For the second year in a row they seem to be the class of the senior circuit.

Title Game While the Crackers rest today, two fine American Legion sandlot teams will meet at Ponce de Leon in the deciding game for the state championship.

Up to date, the DeKalb Barons and the Thomasville kids have played one-sided games.

By all rights, with Southern League umpires Steamboat Johnson and Red Jones calling 'em, the boys today should play a close one.

If you haven't seen a sandlot game for some time, you can't lose by taking in today's title battle. They still play for keeps on the sandlots.

Most unusual has been the Legion program this season. It has been excellently handled and all protests, if any, have been kept from the general public.

Usually each year the boys are caught up in a whirl of protests. This time, however, such bickering as has taken place has been in private.

Director Weldon has done a fine job.

Hold Their Own Those Crackers did no better than hold their own in the long home stand.

They set a torrid pace on the last road trip, playing something like .650 ball. The best they could do at home was .500.

Events of the next 10 days will be most important. The Crackers open a series in Birmingham Tuesday and play at New Orleans and Chattanooga before returning.

The club goes on the road still trailing those Vols by two and a half games. If they can duplicate the pace of the last road trip they may overhaul the leaders.

Strange thing is the Crackers are still having a tough time beating lowly New Orleans.

The Pels knocked the Crackers out of the pennant last season on the final road trip, taking three straight in New Orleans.

History may not repeat, but they're still making it tough on the home nine.

Many Scouts Brooklyn had a couple of scouts at the double-header—Nap Rucker and Ted McGrew. Pants Rowland was there for the Cubs and Bill Bradley was looking 'em over for Cleveland.

The scouts saw Willard Marshall kick a ball and lose one game and then saw him hit in the clutch to win another.

Nap Rucker figures that Willard will work out of his "home slump" in time. Nap is pleased with his development as a fielder.

Summer Golden Glove Trials Start Eight matches of five rounds each will open the summer golden glove boxing trials tonight at the West End arena. Rounds will be two minutes each, and the first fight will start at 8:30.

Program Director Karl East announces that a team will be selected at the end of the elimination tournament, and will battle a squad representing a neighboring state this fall.

All but two of the fighters on tonight's card are Atlantans. Later boys from other Georgia cities will be given a chance to win a place on the team. At present more than 100 boys have registered to take part in the tournaments.

Tonight's card pairs Doyle Evans against Martin Abbott; Edward Johnson vs. Roy Richards; Billy Garrett vs. Bob O'Quinn; Everett Marshall vs. Donald

Drake Defeats Chicks as Vols Split 2 Games

Memphis Routs Poffenberger To Gain Even Break.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Aug. 4.—(AP)—Nashville and Memphis took turns in displaying their hitting and pitching strength and broke even in a double-header, the Vols taking the first game, 9 to 3, and the Chicks the second, 10 to 4.

Tom Drake kept Chicks hitters scattered while the league leaders racked up 17 hits in the opener. In the nightcap, famed Boots Poffenberger and Russ Meers found the going too tough and retired after giving up seven hits and eight runs in three innings.

Memphis' Dan Hefey homered in the third with two on and Naylor hit for the circuit later with no one on.

LOOKOUTS 6-8; BARONS 10-5. CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Aug. 4.—Birmingham and Chattanooga divided honors in a double-header, the Barons taking the first 10 to 6 and the Lookouts the second, 8 to 5.

The first game proved a free-hitting contest, two pitchers seeing service for each side in the first four innings recorded. The Barons scored five runs in the eighth on two singles, two doubles and a home run.

Paced by Outfielder Luce, a former Barons, the Lookouts took an early lead in the second game and killed in the last inning with the tying run in second. Luce had two triples in three trips to the plate to lead his team to victory.

In: 544 524 233-32-67

Mei Sherman turned up with a 39-37-77 the first time he played the course.

No one hit the bogey at 75. Closest were L. G. Sherman, Joe Guzy, Harry Zaban and Nathan Kuhn.

Paul Wilson was the only player hitting the bogey at Candler park yesterday. He registered a 79.

J. T. Stanfield is leading in the club championship qualifying with a 70. The qualifying will continue this week.

August will be "visiting month" for the Atlanta Women's Golf Association, with members playing at a different course each Tuesday.

Mrs. W. D. Tumlin announced yesterday the regular schedule of the weekly tournament will be changed this month in order to accept the invitations of four clubs.

This Tuesday the A. W. G. A. members will be guests of the Forrest Hills Club. On August 13, they will go to North Fulton park; August 20, to Fort McPherson; and August 27 to Bobby Jones.

The play at Fort McPherson will give those unfamiliar with the course a chance to practice for the Wiley Moore tournament which has been scheduled for October 7-11. That tourney will be the final one on the A. W. G. A. schedule.

Ben Conyers defeated Robert Ingram, 1 up, to gain the finals of the President's Cup Golf tournament at East Lake. He will play the winner of the Bob Moore-S. M. Davidson match in the first final.

A. B. Kirkman beat his 15-year-old son, A. B. Jr., 3 and 2, to reach the second-flight finals. He will play L. W. Cole, winner over D. F. Coleman, 3 and 2. In the third flight, J. J. McConaghey will face A. J. Jones or George Suggs. McConaghey trimmed J. C. Taylor, 3 and 2, while the other semifinalists played 18 holes to a tie.

Stewart Gould should have gone out and started looking for lost 10 bills last night. Yesterday afternoon he won the Bobby Jones blind bogey with a 75 and then got the special prize.

Kenneth Meredith, Ed Barnes and E. B. Zachry won the Capital City bogey with 72s. A. O. Mitchell had a 73, and W. H. Slater, Stanley Ellis and W. W. Owen registered 74s to share in the prizes.

George Sargent Jr., A. M. Perkerson, H. H. Arnold and C. S. Moeck took the East Lake dogfight with 119 yesterday. Others sharing in the prizes were: 122—S. E. Gill, S. M. Haw, Ford Fisher and Luke Woodall. 124—F. H. Witting. J. J. McGeary. L.

Even Break Symbolic of Home Stand

Lochbaum Humbles Flock With Five Hits in Second Contest.

BY JACK TROY.

An even break in yesterday's double-header with the New Orleans Pelicans was symbolic of the home stand. The Crackers were able to play only 500 ball on the long stand and hence have not yet seriously threatened to displace the leading Vols.

The Pels won the first game, 4 to 3, while the Crackers came back in the second behind Emilie Lochbaum's fine pitching to blank the Pels 3 to 0.

Speaking of pitching, Jennings Poinexter played in tough luck in the first game. He allowed the Pels only six hits. Al Sherer, on the other hand, gave up only seven and Sherer won because he had better control. Two walks Poinexter issued cost him runs in each case.

Buddy Bates, the former Memphis centerfielder, joined the Crackers and played both games in center. He got a couple of hits in the first game.

Mike Martynik was the victim of a three-run rally in the sixth inning of the second game. The Crackers did all their scoring in that one frame. Willard Marshall's clutch single won the game. Martynik got beat on four hits.

It was largely a case of Lochbaum, the canny Cajon, giving the Pels an old-fashioned Louisiana hayride in the nightcap. He gave up only five hits.

Both games featured fine pitching. A game originally scheduled with the Pels for Monday has been postponed until a later date. Both teams will be off today.

FIRST GAME. The Pels opened the scoring on consecutive doubles by Rogers and Ankenmann.

A triple by Mailho and doubles by Hill and Hefey brought the Crackers two runs in their half.

The Pels went ahead again in the third. Sherer walked and Ankenmann doubled. Both scored on Gillenwater's single.

An error was helpful in giving the Pels their fourth run in the fourth. Gleason walked and Sherer singled. Gleason scored when Marshall led Sherer's drive get by him.

A couple of errors aided the Crackers in the fifth. Anderson walked and Hill singled. Marshall popped to Rogers and Hefey skied to Ankenmann. On a throw to the plate, however, Browne missed the ball and Gleason, who retrieved it, threw wild to the plate. Anderson scored.

The Crackers, a run behind, had a fighting chance for a tie when Bates walked with two out in the ninth. However, the strategy called for Bates to attempt a steal with Mailho up, and Bates was out.

SECOND GAME. The Crackers didn't get a hit until the fourth, when, with one out, Mailho doubled to left. Anderson popped to Scalti, and then the Crackers loaded the bases as Hill beat out an infield hit and Marshall walked. There was no score, as Hefey forced Hill at third.

Browne doubled with one out in the fifth. Gleason flied to Marshall. Scalti was walked intentionally and Martynik was called out on strikes.

Gillenwater's language earned him banishment from the game in the sixth. He objected to a third strike. Jones objected to his remarks, and so Gillenwater was

Brown Blasts

4 Spar Mates In Hard Drill

Brown really went to town before the large crowd of spectators at his Groover's Lake training camp. He boxed three rounds with Jabbin' Foots, three with Jack Baggett, two with Joe Apperson and two more with George Basil.

Brown will taper off today and tomorrow, getting all his strength back for his big fight Thursday.

He has boxed more previous to this fight than any other in his career and Sobel says he's punching harder than ever. Ben is gambling on this bout. He knows he is in shape and can go the distance of 12 rounds. He also feels the middleweight champ can't hurt him. So quite naturally, Brown is going after a kayo.

Included in the big crowd of spectators were a truckload of boys from the Atlanta Boys' Club, the organization which will share heavily in the gate receipts.

Giant 'Caterpillar' Doing Its Part on New Marietta Highway

Superhighway Soon Be Ready For Concrete

Yancey Bros. and Florence Construction Company Aiding in Work.

By PRESS HUDDLESTON.

If you are in the slightest doubt about the early completion of that four-lane superhighway between Atlanta and Marietta, just take a little spin out the beautifully finished part of the road until you come to the beginning of the seven and a half miles now being prepared for paving, and which will complete this somewhat long-delayed but greatly needed highway.

There you will see a throng of workmen getting the wide roadbed ready for the lay of concrete. You will see ponderous machinery, such as "caterpillar" tractors pulling big LeTourneau scrapers—several of them—working like busy bees in an attempt to get the grading ready in six weeks so the paving contract can be let.

It is an interesting sight to see these big "Caterpillar D-8" tractors, furnished through Yancey Bros., Inc., large distributors of road-building machinery, dragging behind them, like giant elephants, LeTourneau Carryall scrapers, these being also distributed by Yancey Bros.

Preparing Roadbed.
The job of preparing the roadbed is being done under contract with the W. L. Florence Construction Company, of Powder Springs, Ga., well-known road builders. This contract involves one of the largest dirt moving contracts in recent times in this state. There will be approximately 180,000 cubic yards of excavation to be completed.

The Florence company is using one 75 Lorain 1-4 yard shovel, one 6-yard LeTourneau and one 12-yard LeTourneau scraper, four "Caterpillar" tractors, one bulldozer, one sheep foot roller and a fleet of International trucks to excavate that huge amount of dirt.

When the highway is finally completed, it will shorten the route from Marietta to Atlanta by about four miles. Its four lanes will afford motorists one of the best stretches of roadway in the south.

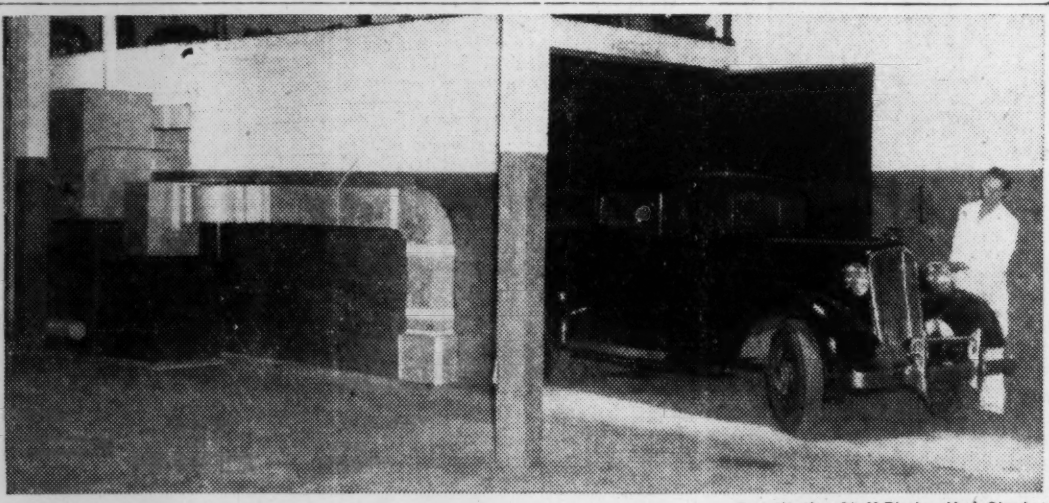

Goodloe Yancey, head of Yancey Bros., is just as proud of the part his concern is playing in this needed highway as will be the happiness of thousands who will spin along over its smooth pavement when the job is finished, which, they say, will not be long now.

"After some delay," said Mr. Yancey, "which probably could not be avoided, the State Highway Department has now gone to work in deep earnestness to finish this highway. It will be a fine piece of work—this four-lane superhighway—worth waiting for, and I know everyone who rides over it will be happy."

A large force of WPA workers are busy on the preparation of the right-of-way. This total contract involves $114,466, of which the WPA puts up $68,562 in labor, and the highway department $45,904 in supplies and materials.

MOVING DIRT FOR SUPERHIGHWAY—At top is shown "Caterpillar" D-8, furnished by Yancey Bros. to W. L. Florence Construction Company for getting roadbed ready for four-lane Marietta highway. Bottom, a stretch of pretty road now leading up to where work on the seven-and-a-half mile finish stretch is going on.

BAKING THE PAINT ON YOUR CAR—Above is the big gas-fired oven just installed by Touchstone Auto Service, 752 Spring street, corner Fourth street, for giving motor-car owners a job of paint just like the auto manufacturers do.

Touchstone Can Give You A Baked-Paint Auto Job

How about the paint on your car? Does it now need a new coat—or would you like to change its color, even though it might be a comparatively new auto?

We ask you, because if there is anything needed in the way of paint for your car, and if you want a job just like the factories turn out, then drive into the Touchstone Auto Service, 752 Spring street, corner of Fourth street.

This is one of the places in Atlanta where G. T. Touchstone, with a lifetime experience in automobile work, and with the past 12 years in the conduct of his own business, is giving unusual service to motor car owners.

At this Spring street place Mr. Touchstone has only recently installed a large gas-heated oven for baking the paint on your car just as auto manufacturers do. It is a large oven that will hold two cars, and after his five factory-trained, expert painters have finished with the paint job, it takes about one hour to thoroughly bake the paint into the enamel or other parts of the car. There is no damage or danger of any kind to gas or oils or any other thing that affects the car.

An attractive feature just now being put into practice is the two-tone jobs of paint under this oven-baked process. A y color desired can be put on, either a new or an old car. It is said that Mr. Touchstone's oven, heated by blowers from an automatic gas furnace, is among the very few in the south—only five such ovens are reported to be in use in the south, and his is one of the only two in Atlanta.

The heat in the oven can be set for whatever temperature is desired to best bake and complete a paint job.

If you are interested in a good auto-factory-method paint job—one that is just like the original job and will last a long time—a telephone call, VE. 9894, will bring an expert to your home, if you like, and give you an estimate on the cost of a new paint job. And even if the job is not done, there is no charge for this. In addition to this unusual paint service, the Touchstone Auto Service does all manner of body

Introducing Ted Edwards—not as the king of motorcycle racers, known from Maine to California—but as an Atlanta young business man, now head of Indian Motorcycle Sales, Inc., distributors of this popular motorcycle for Georgia, located at 592-94 Peachtree street.

Everyone who reads sports pages—and who doesn't?—knows Ted Edwards as a great motorcycle racer. Since 1930—and he started when about 19—he has been straddling an Indian motorcycle, and in many cities throughout this country has broken records, and has now on exhibit at his Peachtree store a number of handsome medals and beautiful cups, won in this country and Canada, certifying to the speed of this young racer.

But let's talk a little about the business end of this young man. His racing record will come later. Ted was born and reared in Portland, Maine. As he grew into young manhood he began to travel on an Indian motorcycle. According to him, they're the best on the market. As he drifted south in his racing career, he stopped in and liked Atlanta. The Indian motorcycle manufacturer's liked him. They liked his daring, successful racing records. They got together—company and man. Ted was made president of local Indian Motorcycle Sales, Inc. Now he likes his job. He has a fine stock of his favorite machines on the floor of his double store on Peachtree. He has them in various sizes and colors, carrying a complete stock. Also a complete stock of parts and accessories, with an up-to-date repair shop.

Edwards is also featuring a three-wheel delivery motorcycle—a most economical and handy machine for such deliveries as they can make. A number of drug stores and similar businesses are being supplied by Ted with these three-wheel delivery machines.

There's also Peugeot motorbikes on his floor that many have taken a liking to. He is distributor for these bikes—and says he's counting on many sales as his growing business continues to grow. "These bikes," said Ted, "have a three-speed transmission, chrome-plated wheels and a gas tank, and the cylinder, which is a two-cylinder with two exhaust pipes, is of aluminum alloy with a skirt of special treated steel."

Everybody likes a winner. That's why motorcycle riders and others who enjoy wheel exercise like to drop in and talk to Ted. He will tell you about some of his races, but he is no braggard. He's rather modest. But if you keep asking, he'll tell you that he holds the world's five-mile record on a motorcycle, racing on a one-mile track. It was made in Springfield, Ill., August 20, 1939. The time was 3 minutes, 59 and 78-100 seconds.

This year—May 12—Edwards won at Chattanooga the national championship for 100 miles, running away from 35 fast entries. On July 7—just a few days ago—Ted won the national championship for 50 miles at Greenville, South Carolina.

HE RIDES 'EM, AND HE SELLS 'EM—This is Ted Edwards, king of motorcycle racers, standing behind the counter in his own Indian motorcycle store at 592 Peachtree street.

Mendel Set For Fall Style and Market Week

Wholesale Distributors Invite Buyers To See Them This Week.

There is a grand buying opportunity awaiting merchants of the southeast during the fall style and market week, which opens today at the wholesale distributing house of H. Mendel & Co. on South Pryor street—"The House With the Goods."

Atlanta's fall style and market week, which extends from August 5 to 10, inclusive, has grown to be the outstanding event of the south for fall and winter buying. Merchants of the southeast have learned to appreciate the opportunities afforded through this special week, as well as the opportunities offered every week in the year to do their buying here. They realize that not only large stocks of merchandise are here to select from, but the big savings on lower shipping charges as compared with more remote points, is an advantage not to be overlooked. Ready with unprecedented selections to choose from, and with every department teeming with appropriate and seasonable merchandise, the house of H. Mendel & Co. offers much to southeastern merchants.

"Special arrangements have been made to facilitate inspection and buying at our house," said S. C. Romm, vice president. "Southern buyers well know they have available in the Atlanta market the full resources of enormous merchandising organizations, where large selections are comparable to the merchandising marts in the large eastern cities. Our company has helped to build that reputation for Atlanta. We are proud of our part in it—and we are tendering a most sincere welcome to the buyers of the south to pay us a visit during this week. All our traveling salesmen will be in the house to help wait upon and welcome our friends and patrons." The Mendel company assures all visiting merchants a most courteous welcome and every convenience possible, including free parking space adjoining its large store building on Pryor street.

National Guard Units of Atlanta Off for Games

179th Field Artillery Go in Trucks; Horse Guard Takes Train.

(Pictures on Page 16)

They're in the army now. With a minimum of fan-fare and celebrating, Atlanta's two National Guard units—the 179th Field Artillery and the Governor's Horse Guard—moved out of the city yesterday to join thousands of other National Guardsmen and Regular Army men in a series of war maneuvers in the great Sabine River valley of Louisiana and Texas.

Wives, sweethearts, mothers and children were on hand to see the soldiers off, but it was a good-natured crowd and noticeably missing were the usual "off to war" heart-rending scenes.

The 179th—Atlanta's Own—under command of Colonel T. L.

Alexander, climbed into 106 huge army transport trucks for their trip, while the Horse Guard—minus their horses—went by train.

It was an inspiring picture as the approximately 1,000 officers and young men climbed into the sleek army trucks and headed out the Roosevelt Highway.

The men began to assemble as early as 5 o'clock in the morning so that by 8 o'clock practically everything was in readiness for the order to move.

There was an air of anxiety prevalent, a feeling of "let's get started." It was a good natured bunch but they seemed to want action.

And then it came. Colonel Alexander, commander of the regiment, climbed into his headquarters car. His driver stepped on the starter. The motor spun.

Signal Comes. This was the signal they had been waiting for. Motors in 106 pieces of equipment began to roar. The men climbed rapidly into the huge trucks and they were off almost before you could say "Jack Robinson."

By 9 o'clock, the huge truck-train had moved through College Park, their initial point, and was merrily on its way to LaGrange, the first stop in the long journey which will require two and a half days.

The train carrying the Horse Guard was expected to arrive at Alexandria, La., this afternoon.

It pays to read the classified ads in The Constitution every day.

The Army IN GEORGIA

FORT OGLETHORPE, Ga., Aug. 4.—In a tactical maneuver to meet opposing mechanized forces, an entire squadron of horses was transported by trailer vans today in a military maneuver for the first time in the history of the United States Army.

Almost 50 large trailer vans, each carrying one squad of horses, men and equipment, sped to Summerville, Ga., early this morning to block the advance of the mechanized squadron of the Sixth Cavalry, which was returning to the post from an overnight march to Waco, Ga.

"From Summerville the squadron was divided into platoons to establish road blocks on important highways leading into Fort Oglethorpe. One troop of the mechanized squadron, however, slipped past the horse troops to outflank the horse squadron."

While the horse squadron failed to block one important road, Lieutenant Colonel Frank L. Whittaker, the chief umpire for the tactical maneuver, commented at the close of the war game that the mechanized troops arrived at the crossing only 10 minutes before the motorized horses.

"I believe that the maneuver today indicated conclusively the value of such equipment," Lieutenant Colonel Whittaker said.

"These trailer vans do the same thing for the horses as the trucks do for the doughboys," he added.

The large trailer vans were issued to the Sixth Cavalry only several weeks ago, and the maneuver yesterday was the first extensive practice made with the equipment. All of the horse troops will be transported to the maneuvers in Louisiana and Texas by the trailers. Here the Sixth Cavalry, which was given commendation in the final critique of the last maneuvers, will operate as a corps reconnaissance regiment.

The Sixth Cavalry is now the only regiment in the entire United States Army that combines both horse troops and mechanized troops.

GENERAL TO VIEW MOTORIZED TRAILERS

FORT OGLETHORPE, Ga., Aug. 4.—For the first time in army history, the Sixth Cavalry's entire squadron of motorized trailers for conveying horses will pass in review here at 11 o'clock Tuesday morning.

SERGEANTS BECOME FATHERS OF GIRLS

FORT BENNING, Ga., Aug. 4.—Three army sergeants were covering blushes this week. They became papas last week—each of a daughter.

The parents are: Sergeant and Mrs. Robert D. West, Company D, 67th Armored Regiment; Sergeant and Mrs. Frank Cassidy, 64th Engineers, and Sergeant and Mrs. Charles D. Stewart, Battery B, 83d Field Artillery. All babies were born in the post hospital.

Ex-Head of Latvia Is Reported Slain

LONDON, Aug. 4.—(P)—Karl Ulmanis, Nebraska-educated former president and premier of Latvia, is dead of injuries suffered in an assault, Exchange Telegraph, British news agency, reported tonight, quoting the Stockholm newspaper Aftonbladet.

The 62-year-old Ulmanis was reported to have been wounded July 22 and to have been taken to a Riga hospital.

Exchange Telegraph also said that Dr. Vilhelm Munters, former foreign minister of Latvia, had disappeared and that his death at the hands of political antagonists was feared probable.

Windsor Bells Quiet On Queen's Birthday

LONDON, Aug. 4.—(P)—Queen Elizabeth celebrated her fortieth birthday today, but the bells of St. George's chapel at Windsor castle, which have rung for centuries in honor of royal birthdays, were silent.

Nowadays church bells may be rung only to warn of invaders.

The customary salute of guns and ceremony of the castle guards also was omitted. However, flags were flown from all public buildings and from Windsor castle.

George L. Prattes Dies; Soda Company Operator

George L. Prattes, 62, operator of the Prattes Soda Company, died yesterday at his residence in a downtown hotel.

He is survived by his wife; a daughter, Miss Helen G. Prattes; three sons, Leon G., Jim J. and Frank G. Prattes, and a brother, James L. Prattes. Funeral arrangements will be announced by Harry G. Poole.

ARMY TO ENROLL EX-ENLISTED MEN

FORT BENNING, Ga., Aug. 4.—Word has been received from the War Department authorizing the re-enlistment of deserving former enlisted men with dependents. Those eligible must meet the following requirements:

Have had at least six years honorable service with character rating "excellent" when last discharged;

Were in grade five or higher, or in a grade rating which entitled them to pay equal to or greater than that of the base pay of grade five; or were reduced from those grades and ratings prior to discharge without prejudice.

Is the taffeta evening gown an elective...or practically required for the exigencies of social life? Of course the cashmere classroom classic is as routine as Math and Human Biology. But that darling, muted monotone plaid can't be left out any more than one of the Romance languages! Really, cramming history and chemistry and social civics into one's head is not nearly as difficult as deciding what to cram into that wardrobe trunk... and what, reluctantly, to leave behind! Rich's College Shop which opens bright and early this morning, is ready with expert advice for just such a problem. Rich's College Board is comprised of College Girls... getting ready, just as YOU are and faced with the same delightful problems! Come in and consult them, and packing becomes as simple as the veriest "crip" course.

Paramount Plans Five New Sea Pictures

By Sheila Graham.

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 4.—I hope you like the sea, because you're going to get a lot of it in near-future pictures. Paramount has five sea epics in the pre-or-post production stage—the newly acquired "Botany Bay," for which Margaret Sullivan is wanted as Joel McCrea's leading lass; "Mystery Sea-Raiders"; "Captain From Connecticut," an epic of 1812 for Gary Cooper and Charles Laughlin (they hope); "Dildo Cay," and "Reap the Wild Wind." Warners has four—"The Sea Hawk," "Captain Horatio Hornblower," "John Paul Jones" and "Quietly My Captain Waits."

"Botany Bay" is not yet published, but the fat sum of $40,000 has already been paid James Norman Bell, co-author of "Mutiny on the Bounty," plus another $20,000 when the book is serialized. The story is of an American Tory, who returns to England after 1783, expecting a reward from George II because of his stand in the war. So perhaps it serves him right when the added King sends him in a prison ship to Botany Bay. But he gets his reward here, in the shape of love—Margaret Sullivan.

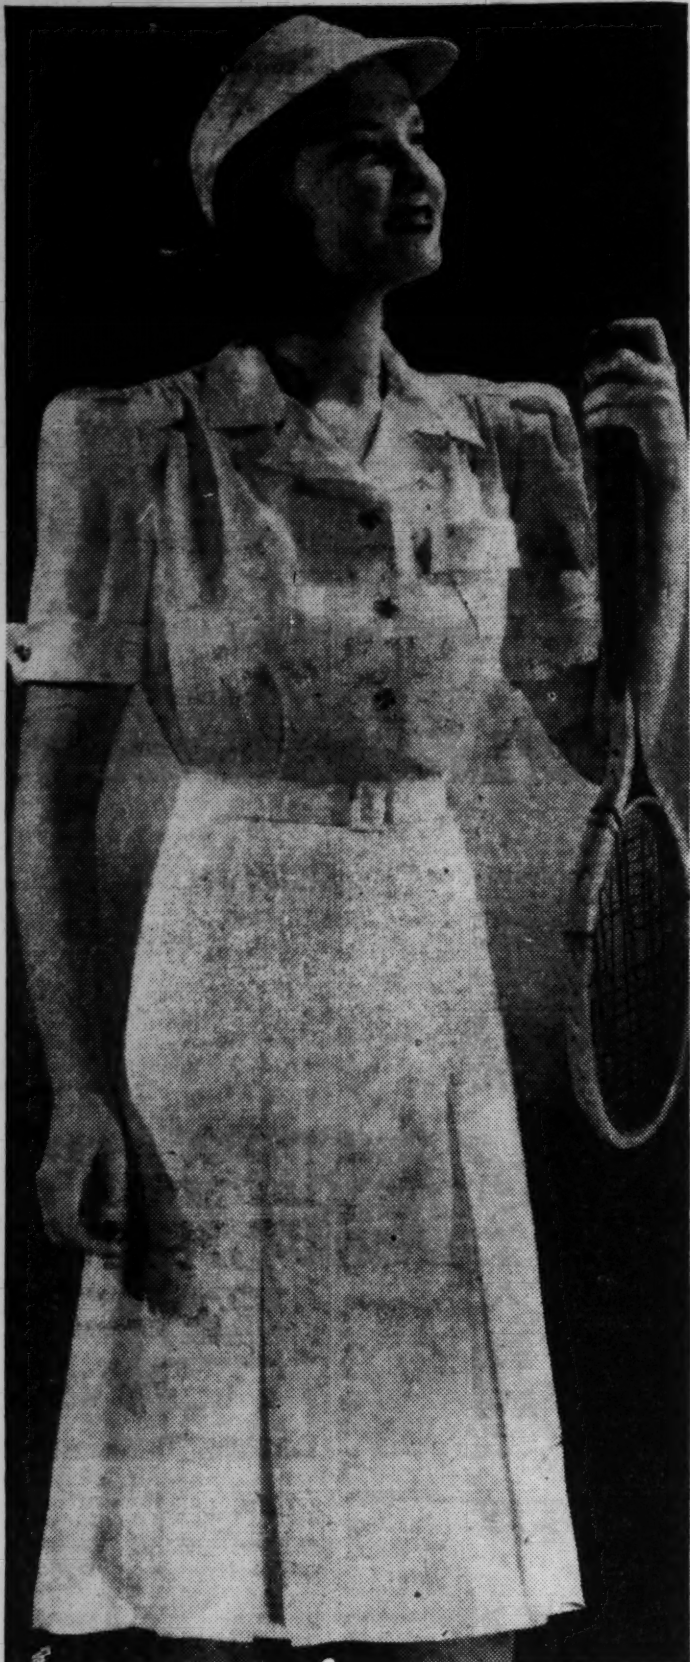

I almost fainted from shock—so did Humphrey Bogart—when they told me at Warners that the roles left vacant by Paul Muni would go to Humphrey (The Menace) Bogart. (Can you see him as Beethoven?) "Gee," just think," Bogart tells me at the studio, "no more slappings from Jimmy Cagney!" But just to get Bogart worked in gently, he will make two gangster pictures before going soft on us in "One Sunday Afternoon." In this last, Bogart lays a sweet, old dentist who recapitulates his past after putting millionaire, ex-childhood pal, under ether. Ann Sheridan will be the girl-he-loved. This story, by the way, was first performed in the stage by Lloyd Nolan, followed by Gary Cooper in the 1933 movie version.

"High Sierra," which Bogart takes over from Muni, is described by him as "like the part I had in 'Petrified Forest,' only the gangster has more style to him." After "High Sierra," Bogart co-stars with George Brent and John Arfield in "Bad Men of Missouri." This will be directed by Michael Curtiz.

"The Ramparts We Watch" was reviewed in Hollywood recently and received a mixed reception. It liked it. The full-length feature contains all the best elements of a "March of Time"—plus a lot of human interest angles. The story concerns the effect on America and the part played by her in the last war. The picture relates the facts clearly and without prejudice. Isolationists will be in the film telling arguments for their cause. Non-isolationists will find just as telling arguments for preparedness. Heated discussions for and against were heard the lobby after the showing. Imagine a picture with the following cast—Ronald Colman, Errol Flynn, Charles Laughton, Erle Oberon, Brian Aherne, Eddie Bartholomew, Greer Garson, Cary Grant, Sir Cedric Hardwicke, Vivien Leigh, Laurence Olivier, Claude Rains, Herbert Marshall, Ray Milland, Maureen Hara and Anna Neagle! All of these stars will appear in a picture titled "The Raffles Ring," and all the proceeds of the full-length film to go to American and British charities, with the stars vowing their services without salary. The story is reminiscent of "Jersey Square"—with separate, but inter-related episodes concerning many generations of a family in the same London use.

Virginia Field has lost her boy-end—Richard Greene, now in nads—but has gained the leading feminine part in "Hudson Bay Company." . . . It's hard to think Helen Parrish except as a cute coolgirl, but she must be grown because R-K-O. has given her a romantic lead opposite Dennis Keefe in "You'll Find Out."

Paramount wants to team Fred Astaire with Bob Hope—sounds good. . . . And R-K-O. is trying sign up Fred for another picture with Ginger Rogers, which ends yet better.

Tuck a bright hanky in the flower-pot pocket, make a wish on the lucky clover-leaf studs and cuff-links, and sally forth into hot weather as fresh as you please in this dress. There's smooth tailoring in its classic lines, perfect for sportswear—and it's washable!

MY DAY: The Family's View Of the Third Term

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

HYDE PARK.—Yesterday, at lunch in the White House, I was interested to meet the committee which had come to choose a new chairman of the Democratic National Committee. I am very happy over the choice which has been made. I have never had anything but respect for Mr. Flynn's integrity and his ability and I am sure that Mr. Farley will give him his co-operation and assist in every possible way.

Mr. Farley is keeping the chairmanship of the New York State Democratic Committee, because he realizes that the New York State organization is so important, that what happens to it is vital to the party. I know the women of the party will find in Mr. Flynn a sympathetic and able advisor, and that he will appreciate the interest of young people in this campaign.

Like many other people, I feel that this is not an ordinary campaign. The party would not have nominated a man for a third term unless they felt that the times were extraordinary and that particular man was needed.

Therefore, those in the party who work for him, must do so not purely because they are interested in the triumph of the Democratic party's background and political theories, but because they believe we face a serious moment in history in which our party has a leader whom we trust to meet, better than any one else, the peculiar problems which face the nation. If we feel this way, then we must put all we have at the service of those running the campaign.

The dinner last night, held during Dr. Harriet Elliott's conference for the heads of the organizations interested in consumer's problems, was very pleasant. I enjoyed talking to her and Dr. Frank Graham.

After a two-hour talk at the White House late in the evening with the President, I took the night train back to New York city. I am glad to say that he hopes to follow soon.

On the way home this morning, I read the article in the Saturday Evening Post by Joseph F. Dinneen. He sums up in the last sentence why he is resigning from the American Newspaper Guild. Much that he says is perfectly true. I, myself, had talked to the late Heywood Brown about many of the points which he brings up. I am a member of the New York Guild. I have never been notified of a meeting.

It is apparent that, for some people, the guild has done good. I do not feel that I have made any real effort to contribute anything as a member. I am going to try to do so in the future, because I believe that until you have done your very best to make an organization useful, you have no right to leave it. For these reasons, I am NOT resigning.

Fashion Is Turning Her Eye Footward-- Pedicure Is Necessary as Manicure

By Lillian Mae.

You can't help being aware that feet are in favor these days. Did you ever see more different types and styles of shoes? Wedgies, spring-soles, cut-outs; styles for bare legs and almost bare feet. Naturally, we have to get busy on feet and make them worthy of all this attention, as well as worthy of being seen, for indeed they must be seen this season.

Pedicures are almost as necessary as manicures, so, of course, the cosmeticians have done their part to help us out. There's a little compact slide-fastening set that is just the article for traveling and contains all the necessary items for keeping the toes "in trim."

In it there's a callous remover, a pumice stone, a tube of mentholated foot cream that soothes and relaxes while it's softening; pads of cotton felt also, to guard against callous spots.

One of these latter pads moistened with the callous remover, placed over a callous and confined by means of the adhesive strips, will, in three to six minutes, loosen up these hard spots so that much of the hard surface may be rubbed off with a rough towel.

Your kit may be had to contain your own favorite shade of polish. For open-toed shoes I prefer the brighter hues. There are those for sun-tanned feet just as for finger nails, and there's also the brand-new bronze-toned rose which you may be using on your finger tips.

Other contents of this waterproofed spun rayon kit in either blue or pink are polish remover, emery board and orangewood sticks and a cellophane envelope containing pads of cotton felt for callouses and cotton tampons for separating toes while polish is being applied, and a booklet giving instructions for the most effective pedicure.

Of course, you have judged for yourself that this one kit is all that's necessary to take on your vacation, for care of finger nails, hands, feet and toe nails.

Phone me, and I'll tell you the name of the neat package, and where it may be purchased. Write me if you do not live in Atlanta, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed for reply.

Feet are decidedly in fashion. Make a neat job of them by putting them on a beauty schedule all their own.

Be Sure All Protective Foods Are Included in Daily Diet

It takes a mass physical examination to show up the results of a national dietary deficiency. Forty per cent of the New Zealanders volunteering for army service are temporarily rejected because of the poor condition of their teeth—and diet is the reason.

It is not always easy to trace the connection between cause and effect, but in this instance it almost proclaims itself. The mainstay of the New Zealanders' diet is mutton. Although milk is produced in quantities sufficient for their use, it is exported as dried milk.

Originally, these people brought their food habits from Great Britain and the British did not until recently regard dairy products as an important part of their diet. Since the report of the League of Nations' committee on nutrition, however, England has made a decided effort to increase its milk consumption. School children were given milk to drink, milk bars sprang up everywhere, and a popular song was written about having a "tiddly" at the milk bar.

The marine type of climate in New Zealand is also unfavorable to dental health. They average only three hours of sun to every four in this country. The vitamin D, produced by the action of the sun's rays, is essential to the utilization of calcium.

Looking into the dietary still more closely, we come upon another possible factor in the poor dental record. Unless whole milk, butter and cheese, which are the richest sources of vitamin A, are used extensively, an A deficiency may easily develop—and this vitamin plays an important role in tooth structure.

A third vitamin directly associated with the health of the teeth is vitamin C. A shortage of C not only affects the gums but has been definitely established as a factor in one type of pyorrhea.

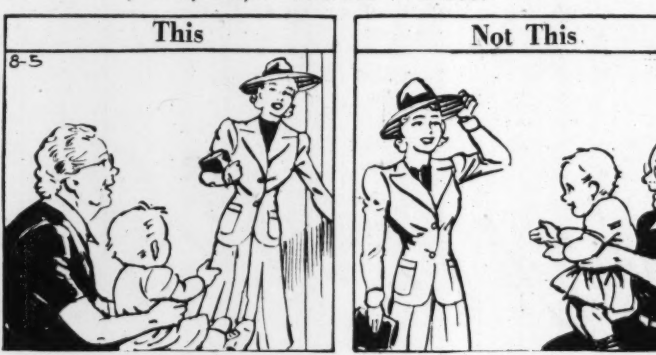

Such overwhelming evidence of the importance of an adequate diet to the health of the teeth should wake us up. While the American diet is considered comparatively good, statistics show that by the age of 40, the average man is apt to have lost 10 teeth! It is not unusual for him to have lost four teeth by the age of 25; seven by the age of 30, and the number missing may increase to 14 by the time he is 50!

Milk is stressed in the average child's diet—but that of the average adult is apt to be calcium-poor. Too few grown-ups get their required pint of milk each day. Cheese is another food which should be used more liberally in the diet. It is extremely rich in both calcium and vitamin A. The increased use of cod liver oil—or some vitamin D concentrate—during the winter months is a step in the right direction. And every family appreciates the importance of oranges, tomato juice, and raw fruits and vegetables as sources of vitamin C. With more attention to proper diet, the teeth of the American people should improve remarkably from one generation to the next.

POINTS FOR PARENTS

By Edyth Thomas Wallace.

Mother: "She must learn that even though I go away I always come back and that other persons can care for her as well as I."

Mother: "I don't believe I'll go, after all. I can't bear to have her cry for me. When she's older she won't be so afraid to stay with other persons."

Children should learn to feel secure with other persons while they are still babies.

Nothing Like Cowboy Songs To Start the Party Fun

Nobody can resist cowboy songs. They put you right back in the old west—cowboys riding the plains, coyotes howling their fool heads off.

Dates and parties perk right up when you get out the songbooks, start this old-time favorite: "O bury me not on the lone prairie Where the wild coyotes will howl o'er me; In a narrow grave just six by three; O bury me not on the lone prairie."

Do you remember "The Red River Valley" sung by the Okies in "The Grapes of Wrath"? You'll like this verse: "Come and sit by my side if you love me, Do not hasten to bid me adieu; But remember the Red River Valley, And the girl that has loved you so true."

"Like to harmonize? Cowboy songs are great for that. Here's one you'll like: "There's a yellow rose in Texas, I'm going back to see, No other fellow knows her, 'Nobody else but me.'"

A wild-eyed gal was "Dangerous Nan McGrew." So whoop it up: "I eat nails for my breakfast, My coffee is TNT, I bite off a hunk of a dynamite chunk, Why that's peaches and cream to me."

Jolly times out in the car, on dates and parties when you can turn to old western favorites—"Git Along Little Dogies," "Little Old Sod Shanty," "Cowboy Jack." They're all in our 50-page songbook, "Western Heart Throbs." Has 27 crackling numbers—lovely western ballads, rollicking cowboy songs—complete with words, music, piano accompaniments, guitar diagrams.

Send 15 cents in coins for our songbook, "WESTERN HEART THROBS," to Home Institute, The

Slimming Panels

By Lillian Mae.

Flattering simplicity has "stand-out-from-the-crowd distinction" anywhere! This new frock, Pattern 4403, owes its good looks to no-fuss details and careful styling by Lillian Mae. Make it of a dark, soft fabric . . . keep the Sewing Instructor on hand for easy reference. Those three front skirt panels make you appear taller and slimmer. Notice how gracefully the neckline curves. The attractively shaped front yokes hold soft gathers below and there's a straight-across yoke that smooths down the gently bloused lines in back. If this style is to be a more dress-up frock, why not have the yokes and optional sleevebands in a lovely contrasting lace?

Pattern 4403 is available in women's sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 36 takes 3 1/2 yards 39-inch fabric.

Send 15 cents in coins for this Lillian Mae pattern. Write plainly size, name, address and style number.

Be "best-dressed woman in town" . . . on a budget plan . . . via the Lillian Mae Book of Patterns. This wonderful magazine contains smart clothes for every member of the family, from smallest "small fry" to over-fifty. Today's Charm Tip.

Are you as careful of the property of others as you are of your own? Best not to borrow, or use anything belonging to another, unless you are willing to replace the article should it be damaged.

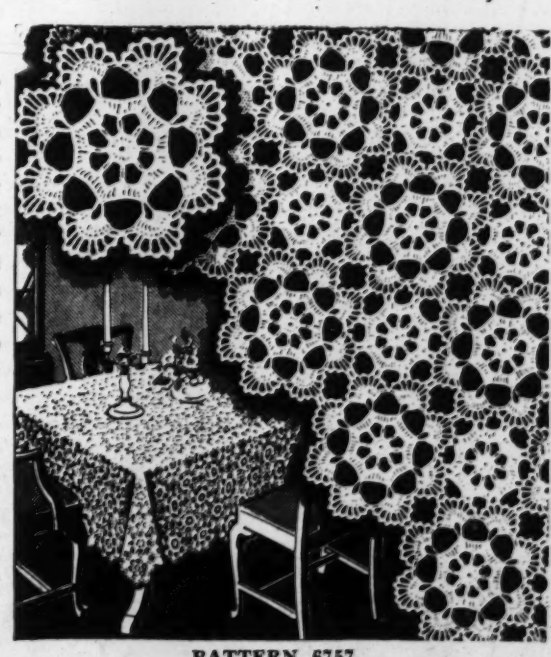

Suppose she wrenches herself loose and goes to live with her children, what is she going to do with the time she has spent in homely tasks? Maybe for a little while, emancipation may be sweet, but the emptiness that follows must be bitter. If she has money she may divert herself with travel; new scenes. But most of those wealthy widows that travel carry a ray of hope in their hearts that sometime, somewhere they will find a haven of peace and rest.

Woman's Quiz

Q. Do perennials bloom the first summer?

A. Generally they do not, and some may require two or three years to reach full maturity. Peonies and similar plants take much longer and it is important to cultivate carefully during this period. A 24-page booklet, "Perennial Flowering Plants," containing descriptions and instructions for propagation, planting, soil and cultural care, may be obtained for 10 cents from The Constitution Service Bureau, 1013 13th Street, Washington, D. C.

Q. Give a recipe for lime punch.

A. Mix together 1-2 cup lime juice and 2 1/2 cups sugar syrup, add 2 cups pineapple juice, 3-4 cup orange juice and 2 cups of water. When ready to serve, put in glasses half filled with crushed ice, garnish with green maraschino cherries.

Have you a household problem to solve? Write your question clearly, sign your name and address, enclose a three-cent postage stamp and mail to the Woman's Editor of The Constitution's Washington Service Bureau, 1013 13th Street, Washington, D. C., for a reply. Don't telephone; write as directed.

Sally Firth SAYS

Dorothy Giddings Is Hostess To Gypsy Club at Lakemont

THE GYPSY CLUB is "on the go" again—this time, the popular sub-deb group is sojourning at Lakemont as guests of Dorothy Giddings, attractive daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Glenville Giddings. The club roster includes Catherine Tift, Ione Mercer, Cato Whelchel, Claire Johnson, Harriett Callaway, of LaGrange; Dorothy Giddings, Harriett Zahner, Laura Palmer and Susan Garrett Ison, who formed the club several years ago. Since that time the belles have had a glorious time entertaining each other at house parties.

This time, however, the Gypsies miss the presence of three of their members, including Laura Palmer, who is at camp; Susan Garrett Ison, who is honeymooning in Hawaii, and Harriett Zahner, who was unable to leave home.

The girls who are spending a week at the popular resort were joined the past weekend by their dates, including Bill North, Jake Ewing, Jimmy Gould, of Brunswick; Bobby Garges, Beau Bryant, of LaGrange; Dean Garner and J. P. Holmes. Sally surmises that Lakemont was the gayest spot in north Georgia during their stay.

Ione and Catherine will leave for Columbus next weekend where they will visit Betty Lummus. On August 18, Ione's mother, Mrs. J. Clifford Mathews, will motor to Columbus, after which the threesome will go to Montezuma, the former home of Mrs. Mathews, to join their Gypsy sisters as house party guests of Ione Mercer.

Here, the girls will spend a week, and doubtless Montezuma will be greatly enlivened by the presence of 10 such pretty girls, for Susan, Laura and Harriett Zahner will be along this time. Sally understands that the Montezuma house party will be the last gathering of the Gypsies for some time to come, with the exception of Susan, who chose the orange blossom train, the girls will leave in September for college.

PARTIES GIVEN for Evelyn Pafford, who will become Mrs. Vivian Eugene Brooks on August 8, have been marked by individuality and attractiveness, and each day pre-nuptial affairs planned for the bride-elect are featured by the unusual in the presentation of gifts.

For instance, when Mrs. J. Harry Hopkins and Mrs. W. C. Marchman entertained at the former's home at a lingerie and hosiery shower, Evelyn was showered with gifts as well as confetti in carnival style. The hostesses placed a large green and white barrel in the garden, under the eaves of the home. All the guests, including the bride-elect, were given small barrels and told to go to the barrel to gather rainwater, an age-old aid for the complexion. The guests, however, had their buckets filled with varicolored confetti, and when the bride leaned over the barrel to get the magic rainwater, she found dozens of presents, to say nothing of finding herself covered with confetti poured from the buckets carried by the other girls.

Later when the bride-elect opened her gifts, which were accompanied by wishes for her happiness, the hostesses recorded the voices of all present on their new electric recording machine, the records later being presented to Evelyn.

When Mrs. James A. Roberts and Ruth Isakson entertained at a shower at the former's home for Evelyn, an effective color scheme was used to represent blue lights, as well as rain. A large net umbrella was placed over the gifts, amid which was placed blue lights reflecting their rays through the umbrella and achieving a "rainy" effect. The bride-elect was presented a small horseshoe for good luck when refreshments were served, and she will carry it in her wedding, which takes place in the West End Baptist church.

In the limelight these days. This popular daughter of Dr. and Mrs. William E. Campbell Jr. keeps a bunk of eight junior campers in line and supervises interesting features of nature study. She has such a "full house" that she cannot take care of any more girls in her attractive "Nature Den."

Helen McClain, who has just returned from camp, was one of Mary Jane's most interested followers. And, by the way, these two Atlanta girls were among the advanced riders who joined a gay Tennessee rideathon for a horseback trek trails of the surrounding mountains. And, by the way, Helen's mother and brother, Mrs. Donald McClain Jr. and Donald III, were recent guests at the camp.

"Continuity," A Money Maker If You've Got It.

Word that has come into general use within recent years is "continuity." It's a good word, and it earns scads of money.

Announcement that one of the "Blondie" series of comedies is running at the Rialto inspired this dissertation. It is the fourth or fifth—or maybe even sixth—of the series concerning the adventures of a young couple, the kid and the dog.

Those I've seen I didn't think so terribly good—or terribly bad. But most patrons once interested in their hero and heroine, keep on going. They've acquired the habit.

The Andy Hardy series has achieved even greater success. I have never been able to share the popular taste for these films—perhaps because I detest Mickey Rooney—but they pack 'em in at the Grand and afterward at the Rhodes.

Actually, they're a more refined version of the dear old-fashioned "serials" which ran in weekly installments and kept flicker spectators worried all week about whether Pearl White would be run over by the train or if rescue would arrive in the nick of time.

They are mighty fine for the actors, who are assured of good jobs just as long as a series keeps up interest.

I like—and so, apparently, do millions of readers, "continuity" in magazine fiction. Once a writer develops a good character he is set for life. Consider Guy Gilpatric's Mr. Glencannon, the inebriate ship's engineer; William Hazlett Upton's master salesman of Earthworm tractors; the fate and shrewd—and impossible—Scattergood Baines, who has earned so much coin for Bud Kelland. And that's only a few.

It's that way with newspaper comic strips—which are not so comic any more.

My Own Annie.

At the risk of being fired without notice, I venture to state that absolutely the world's worst cartoon strip is "Little Orphan Annie," appearing daily and Sunday in this well—and favorably known—newspaper.

But it possesses continuity. For more years than I care to mention Annie has been my alarm clock. She has got me out of bed when I yearned to slumber. A decade before my stuff was honored by appearing in the same publication I would arise first of the family, go out to the front porch in the face of rain, snow or sleet, pick up the milk with one hand and The Constitution with the other and settle down in an easy chair.

The milk, of course, should have been placed in the refrigerator. But a few minutes wouldn't hurt it.

The eight-column headline would inform me whether the world had blown up overnight. A glance would suffice. Then I'd turn—and still do—to see what had happened to Little Orphan Annie.

Usually it was nothing much. But even that was a relief. She had been in danger, but she had escaped. She and Sandy were off down the big road again.

I have learned that Harold Gray, creator of Annie and Daddy Warbucks—and whatever has become of him?—is an economist.

Mr. Gray can make one idea—and not such a hot idea at that—last seven days. You can depend upon the new one, if any, starting on Sunday. And it's repeated on Monday—for a reason. Some papers which use the strip daily don't publish on Sunday and readers can't be kept wondering what happened over the weekend.

Milked Them Dry.

I insist—and will maintain against all adversaries with sword, pistol or battle ax—that "Little Orphan Annie" is the world's worst.

But I will fight for her even unto death, and assuredly she will outlive me, for she's just the same age and size as when I first met her, back in the dim ages. And I count that day lost when I am far from civilization and miss an installment of her adventures.

For years I have been trying to think up a "continuity" for this daily treat of literature and encyclopedia of misinformation. But without avail.

I did create two characters, a thread-bare seeker of small change called Squish Duggles, and a bibulous old-timer known as Uncle Jeems Peavy. But I soon drained them of whatever ideas they may have had. The mine is worked out, the well has run dry.

Some day, after a dream, I'm going to create a character who will make me rich. Maybe I doubt it, because the best dreams come after you've waked up in the morning and tucked your head under the blanket to keep the light out of your eyes and started a nice nap.

And that's why Little Orphan Annie has ruined my life. I don't get that nap. I've got to get up and go out to the front porch and see what's happened to her.

Meteor Showers Seen

For Four August Nights

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 4.—(P)—This is the month for meteors, and the American Meteor Society asks star-gazers to watch the heavens closely during the nights of August 10 through 13 and report meteor counts to the society's observatory at Upper Darby, Pa.

Those will be the best nights for meteor showers, the society said tonight, and the best observation period is between midnight and dawn.

Dr. Charles P. Olivier, meteor society president, advised that about 70 meteors an hour may be expected after midnight "on the best night," probably August 11, and 40 to 50 on the other three.

Atlanta National Guard Units Go to War But Not for Keeps

SOMETHING NEW

KISSES FOR TWO

His daughter, Glenda Lee, does the first honor while the Mrs. looks on. Yes, you can bet she was next. Scores of other scenes like this marked the departure.

WHAT! NO HORSES?

Constitution Staff Photo—Pete Roton. The Governor's Horse Guard—minus their horses—had to fall back on the old reliable "iron horse" to get them to Louisiana for the war maneuvers. Here the men, looking neat and trim, are ready to step aboard the "horse" when it is wheeled into position. Notice the saddle bags.

THE RIGHT ROUTE

SOFT STUFF

Visits Old Friend Doing 635 Years In Kansas Prison

KANSAS STATE PENITENTIARY, LANSING, Kan., Aug. 4.—I told the warden if the boys would really like to hear something about the war in Europe, I would be more than glad to tell them about it. So after Sunday dinner, we walked across the prison yard to the chapel. On the platform half a dozen women with kindly faces were leading in a hymn. Most of the 200 prisoners were singing. When they were through, I was to talk for half an hour, and then another religious denomination would conduct another service.

The chapel was full. I was told that, although some of the men were not religious, they came because it was something new, and made Sunday different from the other prison days. Maybe only a new face among the religious leaders on the platform. Maybe a hymn they had not sung for a long time, with freshly unfamiliar words. But usually something.

When you speak often, giving more or less the same talk, you can soon size up an audience by how still they sit in their seats at the tense parts, and how quick they are to get the little jokes.

Keeps Speaker Alert.

This was one of the fastest crowds I have ever had. Because not much that is new ever happens to them. When it does, they get right on the edges of their chairs and almost think ahead of the speaker, so he has to keep on his toes.

Unless you are used to speaking to prison crowds, you usually get one or two quick laughs you hadn't planned on, such as the one a Kansas governor got, about 10 years ago, when he opened carelessly with the introduction to his regular campaign speech, and, beaming around the room, told the boys, "I am very glad to see so many of you here."

Then I got a chance to talk to my old friend who has already done seven years of his 635-year sentence. This is an unusual offense, for he embezzled several hundred thousand dollars from the state treasury, unlike Richard Whitney, who embezzled more money from private individuals and got only three years, or Boss Tom Pendergast, of Kansas City, who embezzled his from the federal government and got only one year, or unlike Al Capone, who in the process of cleaning up several million dollars had to have a number of people machine-gunned and has already finished his 10-year sentence.

My friend, who is doing his 635 years, also noticed how the boys had laughed. "That's something you wouldn't ever get," he said, "unless you'd been in one of these places. Nobody ever gets to laugh."

Nothing Ever Funny.

"Nothing ever happens to laugh at. Now you, on the outside, you probably laugh three or four times a day. But most of those fellows have been in here for a week. Because there's nothing ever funny about these places. If you're in for a short time, you think how awful it's going to be when you have to get out and face all the fellows you knew. And if you're in for a long time, you keep wondering how long the folks on the outside that still write to you are going to live, or how soon they will quit getting a kick out of writing to a fellow that's in the penitentiary and forget all about you. And then you keep wondering, if you ever do get out, whether by that time everybody you ever knew will be dead or moved away."

"It's not what they do to you in these places that makes them so tough. It's not that they ever beat you with clubs, or starve you. That would be something new—something you could get mad about that. It's just being in them, and the same thing happening, day after day, nothing ever funny, and knowing it will go on just the same, year after year. So naturally the boys in here get a big bang out of a talk like yours that gives them something they can really laugh at."

But now, of course, I exaggerate a little. For while my friend has a maximum sentence of 635 years, in point of fact with good behavior he may get out when he has served his minimum of 31 years, ready to start life anew at the age of 76, after having paid the penalty of having done, seven years ago, a very silly, stupid, crazy thing, and for not having been smart like Richard Whitney was, or Tom Pendergast was, or Al Capone was.

Nazis Destroy Monument To Edith Cavell, Report

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—(P)—Miss Carolyn R. Nash, a volunteer ambulance driver for the American hospital near Paris, arriving today aboard the Yankee Clipper, reported the Germans have destroyed the monument to Nurse Edith Cavell in the Tuilleries Gardens, Paris.

Among the passengers were Eugene D. Rothschild, a nephew of the head of the French branch of the banking firm, Mrs. Rachel Eksteyn, wife of Benno Eksteyn, reputedly one of the leading diamond merchants in Europe, and her two children.

Leaflets Tell Rumanians Allies Are True Friends

LONDON, Aug. 4.—(P)—An Exchange Telegraph (British) dispatch from Bucharest, today said leaflets entitled "Rumania, Awake," and stating that the Allies, not Germany and Italy, are the true friends of Rumania, were found in the outlying districts of the Rumanian capital today.

Sharp Increase
Traffic CasesNumber of Suspensions and Probations Also Rise Sharply.

Traffic cases in Atlanta have shown a 49 per cent increase in June over January of this year, police records showed yesterday. The traffic department booked 2,797 cases against Atlanta motorists during January, while 4,187 figures, not yet completely tabulated, showed a sharp drop over the previous month. The decrease was blamed by policemen on the three weeks of rain which kept motorcycle patrolmen off the streets.

The largest number of cases were made for violation of the 25-mile-an-hour speed law, with cases charging illegal parking running a close second.

Despite the increased number of cases, the number of convictions has not increased proportionately. Suspensions and probations have risen sharply, increasing from 696 in January to 1,633 in June.

The patrolmen who have made the largest number of cases this year are J. C. Clay and H. T. Jenkins, with more than 1,600 arrests to their credit for the six-month period. Running a close second are J. B. Bishop Jr. and T. J. Sikes Jr., with just a few less, the docket book shows.
